

Romulus DPW building cost doubles

It will be a while before the Romulus Dept. of Public Works moves into its new building — purchased more than a year ago at a cost in excess of $450,000.

Bids on remodeling the inside of the vacant industrial structure came in nearly double the amount budgeted for the job in the city's 1973-74 budget.

The city had set aside $120,000 for remodeling the structure located on the north side of Goddard Road between Wayne Road and Metropolitan Airport. Bids, from the J.S. Vig Construction Company, came in at $209,000.

'We'll just have to cut down our costs in some areas.' --Mayor Carmichael.

"WE'LL JUST HAVE to cut down our costs in some areas," said Mayor Hyle Carmichael. Chuck Hellman, the city's consultant from Wade, Trim and Associates, a Taylor-based engineering and planning firm, said the committee which drew up the plans for remodeling the building will be meeting sometime within the next week to decide which items to cut from the specifications on remodeling the interior of the building.

"We're trying to follow the council's guidelines in remodeling the structure, but I doubt if we will have a report on how we can change the specifications and lower the costs until August," Hellman said. The remodeling committee, which will decide which of the items contained in the original specifications have to be cut, consists of Hellman, Council members James Stewart and William Oakley, and Director of the Department of Public Works, William Pritula.

IT HAD TAKEN the committee and the city administration more than eight months to draw up the specifications for the building, after it was purchased in mid-summer, 1972.

During that time, the group reported to both the city administration and the city council on its progress, and accepted suggestions from both branches of government on how the building should be remodeled into a functional facility.

Among the changes needed was the addition of a storage area, the addition of offices, the construction of a vehicle repair area, paving the parking lot surrounding the building and improving of the cement floor in the building.

In addition, the committee recommended construction of a locker and shower area in the building, a cafeteria and storage pens for inventory control.

Postal people complain about work conditions

By CAROL THOMAS
Roman Staff Writer

Postal employees at the Detroit Metropolitan Airport mail facility in Romulus say their working-place is a firetrap - and worker morale there is low because of it.

Workers told of mail bags covering holes in the wall, holes in the roof, lost mail in the debris, searing summer heat and biting winter cold.

Postal facilities in the airport are headquartered in a wooden shed-type building used by the Army in world War II.

THE TESTIMONY of the workers was presented to a U.S. Congressional subcommittee meeting in Detroit Friday by union president Douglas Holbrook.

"Testimony exposes a postal management which constructs a modern facility in Detroit from which to send mail to a firetrap shack at the airport," Holbrook said.

Members of the subcommittee on postal service heard testimony from local mayors and township supervisors as well as postal workers in their all-day hearing at the City County building.

The president of the Michigan State Ass. of Letter Carriers William A. Rence, told the subcommittee members that letter carriers are frustrated with the way the post office is managed.

"TRY TO DELIVER the mail with under-staffed offices has been the worst thing that has ever happened to the post office," he said.

"We find that letter carriers have been driven to heart attacks, mental breakdowns and physical deterioration due to the demands of management to try to do the impossible," Rence said.

Mayors of cities and township supervisors in the Western Wayne County area told the subcommittee made up of Rep. John Conyers D-Mich., Rep. William Ford, D-Mich. and chairman Rep. H. John Hanley, R-New York that mail service is "fair to poor" in Western Wayne County.

Although officials from Romulus itself did not testify before the subcommittee, George Moore, the Supervisor of Huron Township, came before the subcommittee to offer suggestions for improving the service in Huron.

LEVYING A HIGHER FEE for sending "junk mail" would bring the post office's work load down to a more tolerable level, Moore told the committee.

"It is my understanding that the intent of mail was to deliver a command, request or personal feeling from one person to another," he explained.

Huron township could also be proud of its own mailing address - hence its own post office, Moore said. Mail there is sent from Belleville, Carleton, Flat Rock and Romulus mailing addresses.

Huron has special problems common to rural areas, Moore said - the problem of postal service not keeping up with growth. This growth will call for careful planning if residents are to be properly served by postal service.

Moore also suggested walking door-to-door mail routes in areas of high population density in the area.

Township eyes extension of road patrol services

Wayne County Sheriff's road patrol service may be extended through Nov. 30. A committee of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners recently voted to extend the services of the road patrol.

The board's Public Safety and Judiciary Committee approved the extension, but the measure must be approved by the full board or road patrol service will cease Aug. 31.

Area township supervisors met with the committee in late June to seek an extension of the road patrol service. At that time, the committee unofficially approved the extension. At the July 11 meeting of the committee, the Nov. 30 extension was officially approved.

COMMITTEE Chairman Dick Buss said that although the extension received committee support, "it will be a lot tougher going when it comes to the full board of commissioners."

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners' Ways and Means Committee will discuss the proposed service extension tomorrow. If the committee okays the extension, the full board of commissioners would then have to approve the extension.

The county board of commissioners controls funds for the sheriff's department. The board originally decided to discontinue free services to area communities two years ago.

"The commissioners want the county's 10 townships to pay some part of the cost of road patrol services or establish their own police departments. According to the commissioners, Wayne County faces a possible budget deficit and cannot afford to continue subsidizing police services for townships.

NONE of the county's 33 cities receives free road patrol services, the commissioners said. Either cities maintain their own police departments or contract for the sheriff's services, as does the City of Romulus.

The supervisors of Van Buren, Huron, Sumpter, Canton, Brownstown, Plymouth and Northville townships contend that they are unable to finance the sheriff's services on any basis, including millage proposals. The majority of township officials feel that the road patrol is a county responsibility and a county obligation.

Township officials said the residents of their communities pay taxes and are entitled to road patrol service. The officials said the state laws provide for law enforcement in unincorporated areas by the county sheriff.

A resolution recently approved by the Van Buren Township Board of Trustees said: "There is no way possible under the present tax set-up for the townships involved to provide their own police protection."

A RESOLUTION calling for court action, if necessary, recently adopted by the Van Buren board is another step in the battle to retain the road patrol service.

At a June meeting of the Van Buren Township Board of Trustees, Supervisor G. Elton Gollwitzer was instructed to take a "firm position" with the county commissioners regarding the withdrawal of the road patrol.

Hitchhiking is dangerous

Romulus teenagers haven't exactly succumbed to the lure of the open road with their thumbs turned out for a ride, but Sheriff's Department officers who work in the area are keeping track of hitchhikers for the sake of both hitchhikers — and drivers.

"You can talk all you want about the poor hitchhiker but the motorist gets attacked or hurt or robbed as often as the hitchhiker does, Lt. Robert Sullivan from the Sheriff's Out County division said.

Sullivan said Romulus has little or no problem with hitchhikers, but that the warm summer months are bringing out increasing numbers of

Intermediate school board elects Morris as president

A Romulus resident was named president of the Wayne County Intermediate Board of Education. He is Carl W. Morris of 13599 Huron River Dr.

Morris has served on the intermediate board for the past 16 years. He also is a member of the Romulus Board of Education and was re-elected on June 11 to begin his 25th years of service.

Since 1968, Morris has been a member of the Wayne County Election Screening Committee. He also is active in the Michigan School Board Assn. and served five years on the State Tenure Commission.

Also elected at the July 11 organizational meeting of the intermediate board of education was Rev. Darneau V. Stewart of Detroit as vice-president; Norman O. Stockmeyer of Westland as secretary; Ralph E. Johnson of Gibraltar as treasurer and Ira Field of Highland Park as trustee.

The Wayne County Intermediate School District provides consultant and supportive services to 36 local school districts. It also serves as a link between the local units and the Michigan Dept. of Education.

The Wayne County Intermediate School District continuously examines the needs of the school districts it services, according to Morris. Services are revised on the basis of local needs, desires and goals.

The goal of the district is to improve education for the more than one-half million of the project and proceeded eastward. The job had to wait during the wet season just past while engineers designed systems for carrying water from the foundation of the roadway to the city's drainage systems. The task should be completed within the next two weeks. — Romulus Roman photo.

Enterprise-Roman editor tells Russian story

By MITCH KEHETIAN
Editor

Somewhere in the sprawling Soviet capital of Moscow, a crippled veteran proudly wears a medal he "earned" for surviving the two-year siege at the historic Russian city of Leningrad.

The man talks of peace because he saw the hell of war and death at Leningrad — a city that nearly starved to death in the defense against the Nazis.

I met this man, a burly Russian, while on my latest visit to the Soviet Union last fall. We met by chance aboard Moscow's superb "metro" subway system...and made possible because Stefan had some knowledge of the English language.

The medal he wore was tarnished and nearly worn smooth of apparent excessive handling...and he wore it with pride.

My friend asked: "Why must we be at odds. Together we crushed the tyranny of Hitler's Nazi legions — and at a supreme sacrifice in lives to both our nations. Yet, today, we view each other's moves with caution and skepticism. Why?"

The answer Stefan seeks and wants may have been answered last month when pledges of peace to ease world tension echoed across the nation and the world.

The message of hope and peace came from President Richard Nixon and Leonid I. Brezhnev ... meeting in Washington D.C., for their second historic summit in a year.

On the first day of their second historic summit, the two world leaders greeted each other with warm handshakes — a handshake between the leaders of the American capitalist system and the Soviet Union's communistic system.

IN THEIR exchange of pledges for peace, Nixon said: "The hopes of the world rest with us at this time in this meeting (and) I am confident, Mr. General Secretary, that in our meetings this week we shall not disappoint those hopes."

And Brezhnev responded: "I and my comrades who have come with me are prepared to work hard to ensure that the talks we will have with you, Mr. President, and with other American statesmen, justify the hopes of our people and serve the interests of a peaceful future for all mankind."

Let us hope that these words will truly light the flame to understanding, freedom and equality for all peoples. We must if we are to survive.

In my recent travels to Armenia, one of the 15 Soviet Republics which constitutes the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics (USSR), it was my good fortune to visit Moscow four of the last five years — though each stay in the Soviet capital was limited to three days each.

I found Moscow to be more than a city of Russians. It is the central capital for more than 240 million peoples — representing more than 130 nationalities.

To the Georgian, the Uzbek, the Russian, the Azerbaijani, the Armenian, and the other constituted Soviet republics — the city Napoleon cursed during his disastrous retreat, serves as the focal point of an ideology foreign to our way of life.

In my travels to Moscow I avoided contact with government representatives. I wanted to meet the people — the men and women who work in the factories and the men and women who must bear arms.

ONE SUCH MAN I met on my sojourn to the Soviet Union last October was Stefan.

Before we parted, now standing on the cobblestoned Red Square of Moscow, I reminded the war-crippled man of a joint space venture our two nations were discussing.

The first Soyuz-Apollo docking will become a reality sometime in 1975; yet, not more than five years ago, such an entertaining thought would have triggered an emergency session of the Congress — to denounce any form of a joint space venture with a communist state.

AND LAST YEAR I purchased cognac with American Express checks — in Moscow, USSR; and if I were to return again, this time I could order shish-kebab and rice pilaff in Erevan, Armenia...with a Diners Club credit card.

And before the end of the year, Russians will be able to purchase Pepsi Cola — along with their favorite beverage...vodka.

The mood is changing. If it takes Pepsi, American Express and Diners Club credit cards, and American wheat to break the thaw — then President Nixon deserves more credit than he has received in opening the trade communication with the Soviets.

As we compete for world trade and influence — and space conquests — we will come together. And I'd be the first to admit we'll have differences of opinion, swords will rattle, threats of suppression will echo through the U.S. Security Council — but for the first time we're talking...and the talks must accelerate for the good of all peoples who cherish peace and freedom.

DURING THE spring semester break, a group of students from Stevenson Junior High School of the Wayne-Westland school district toured the Soviet Union — and they came back with a new understanding of the wants and desires of the Russians, the Ukrainians, and other Soviet citizens.

Intourist, the official Soviet tourist agency wrote back: "The students of Wayne and Westland are a credit to the young people of America. They portrayed the true image of America's youth..."

We may disagree with their system, and they with ours...but we must take that second step to understanding.

The joint U.S.-Soviet space docking effort in 1975 may set the peace flame aglow.

And the summit between President Nixon and Soviet Communist Party Chief Brezhnev may have lit that flame of understanding.

And somewhere in Moscow, a crippled veteran of the Battle of Leningrad who proudly wears a medal for surviving the two-year siege at Leningrad may be heartened by the news of new steps to peace and understanding.

Romulus honors Elvera Fischer after 20 years of city service

BY JIM CARRAVALLAH

It's been 20 years since Elvera Fischer handled the Romulus Water and Sewer Department billing work single handedly.

During that time, the number of billings quadrupled and the population doubled in the community.

Chamber blasts two candidates her statements, while Martin admitted the error, but said it was a printer's error.

As manager of the Sheraton Metro Inn, Bingamen said he was billed for membership in the Chamber of Commerce, "I have before me a bill for membership in the Romulus Romulus Chamber of Commerce dated July 6," Bingamen said.

"I ADMITTED that the Metro Inn has been late on paying the $200 dues to the chamber, but claims he is a member because of his employer.

While Martin admits that the chamber of commerce affiliation is in error, he said correcting the error would be a costly task.

"I admit the error and apologize," Martin said. "But I have literature printed with seven other candidates and I can't tell them to withhold 10,000 pieces of literature because of one error."

Martin, along with Bingamen, is a member of the Trout Team slate for the Aug. 7 primary. Eight candidates, including Bingamen and Martin, have their campaign literature prepared jointly, with all eight sharing the cost.

"I CAN SAY, I was never asked to join the Chamber, if that means anything, and when Ms. Ristow called me to verify that I had not been a member, she turned me down when I offered to correct the mistake," Martin said.

"She told me, 'That doesn't change anything'."

"I really doubt it means that I'll be elected or not simply based on chamber affiliation."

"The voters know me, and they'll vote for me on my merits, not because of the organizations I belong to."

Martin said the charges were probably politically motivated.

Library system has free films

A special film service to nursing homes, homes for the aged and Senior Citizen housing units has been started by the 52 member libraries of the Wayne Oakland Federated Library System, which includes the Wayne — Westland, Garden City, Inkster, Belleville and Romulus libraries. Known as "Guest Theater," a special collection of 100 16mm. films is available for loan at no cost to all licensed homes and facilities located in the area served by a member library in the Wayne Oakland System.

Romulus Township, which housed a small National Guard Airstrip, became a city with an international passenger airport terminal.

And recently, the employees of the Romulus City Hall recognized Miss Fischer for her long-time service — a total of 20 years this past July 6.

MORE THAN 30 people attended a reception and dinner in honor of Ms. Fischer's dedicated service.

Those employees presented Ms. Fischer with tributes and plaques and small verses written in to commemorate her service to the community.

"Elvera Fischer is of the old school, where people felt obligated to do their job, and her long-time dedicated service is one of the reasons why the citizens of the community receive good service," Mayor Hyle Carmichael said.

"I'm proud of having the opportunity to associate with her."

Ms. Fischer first came to Romulus at the urging of the late township supervisor Nelson Bower in 1953.

"THE TOWNSHIP clerk had died, and the water billing clerk moved to that position," explained Miss Fischer. "Mr. Bower knew me, because he came to shop at the store where I worked, and asked me if I wanted the job."

"I took it, and haven't been able to leave."

The list of Ms. Fischer's employers reads like a list of Romulus history. After Bower, Terry Troutt, now a candidate for mayor in the city, asked her to stay on the position. Following Troutt, Edmund Bizek, Sr., asked Ms. Fischer to stay on.

When Bizek left, Rod Smith asked Miss Fischer to work, and then Carmichael employed her in the position.

DURING THAT time, the work load increased to the extent where three people are now needed in billing division and much of the work is handled by a computer.

"The problems are much greater today, than before, with more population to service, more ordinance to enforce, and more complaints to answer."

And there are complaints. Since she first started on the job, Ms. Fischer watched the water rates increase by 25 per cent, to their present $2.50 per 1,000 cubic feet charge, and watched a sewer charge be tacked on to the water billing.

When the sewer charge was first proposed in 1955, residents paid 110 per cent of the total of their water billing for sewer fees, but today, they pay 70 per cent of their billing — still a vast increase over the rates of July 6, 1953.

Also during the time, the job became less personal, with a computer absorbing most of the work which was done by hand.

"THERE ARE advantages and disadvantages to the computers doing the work," Ms. Fischer said. "The computer does keep the bill payer up to date on the amount he owes, but it doesn't tell him all the charges involved in the billing. 'I can almost say I can accept working with the computers today,' she said.

"I guess I have to, because I can't stop progress."

With progress, however, Ms. Fischer hangs on to some of the tasks of the past — such as the manual billing of 25 special customers in the system.

"In 1971, the city council passed a resolution allowing hardship water customers to pay their tap-in fees on extended time payments," she said.

"The people were allowed to put down $50 and pay their bills over a longer period of time."

"ALL THE billing had to be done by hand, and since I was the only one used to the manual billing, I volunteered to do it."

Besides her duties on the job, Miss Fischer is active in community affairs.

She was one of the first presidents of the Romulus Red Cross, and she has been active as chairman of the last 14 Romulus Muscular Dystrophy fund raising drives.

She has been with the Easter Seal Society as an active member for the past 10 years, and is a charter member of the Romulus Community Relations Commission.

"I enjoy working for people," she said. "I can say my charitable work is among the most satisfying I've done in my life."

WITH 20 years behind her on the job, Ms. Fischer didn't mention anything about retirement. "I kind of like it here," she said.

And, her fellow employees like her to stay.

"She's someone who everyone in the city hall really likes," said a fellow employee.

"I don't think anyone would be comfortable around here without knowing she was around."

Officials say

youths without transportation.

"MORE AND MORE there are young people without 15 cents in their pockets setting out to travel all over the country," he explained.

While the youngsters face a lot of danger from attackers, Sullivan says his sympathy lies with the driver who picks up a rider as much as the rider.

"Too many people wind up getting robbed or killed," he said. "I advise motorists to lock their doors and not pick up hitchhikers."

"How many times have you seen a driver stop to pick up somebody and get hit in the back by one or two cars."

But in spite of the "no present problem" report in the Romulus area, Sullivan said the possibility that young girls hitchhiking might get raped or killed is not minimized at all.

CRIMINALS frequent areas where hitchhikers wait for rides and many times a young girl who is assaulted is considered lucky because it wasn't worse — she's still alive.

"I would say that the rape cases associated with hitchhiking could actually be about six times the number of cases reported, speculated Garden City Police Chief Robert Behrendt.

"I think a lot of women who are raped while hitchhiking — or a lot of women who are raped in any circumstance — do not report the crime to the police," he said.

"The way rape prosecutions are handled, a good defense attorney for the rapist can make an angel look like a streetwalker," he said. "I can't really blame a woman who doesn't want to go through the ordeal or doesn't think it's worth it."

"ALTHOUGH I'd like to see the guy who does it behind bars, I can see a woman's reluctance to undergo the strict questioning."

Officers who routinely handle rape cases say they must force the victim to undergo detailed questioning in order to prepare her for the information she will be asked to give at the later trial.

They must find out every minute detail of the assault in preparation for the case.

"If a girl walks in here and says she's been raped, we have to first establish with a medical examination that she has been raped, then we have to find out by whom, and then we have to try to find out if there was some element of cooperation on the part of the victim," one officer said.

SEVERAL officers say they hope courts begin to refuse to allow defense attorneys for persons accused of rape to delve into a girl's past to make her look as sleazy as possible.

"Even a prostitute can get raped, it doesn't matter who the woman is," one juvenile officer explained.

Although warnings are often issued to girls who hitchhike that they can't prosecute a rape because they willfully got into the car, a Wayne County assistant prosecutor said that's not so. A girl is getting into the car for a ride, not sex.

"Each rape case has to be taken on its own merit, you can't say hitchhikers can't prosecute the guy or that they always can, said Jesse Eggleton, an assistant prosecuting attorney.

"IN ANY RAPE case the girl has to resist — that's the first element. If there's a gun to her head, that can be termed overpowering force, but she has to do more than just say no."

"A lot of people call hitchhiking cooperation, but the girl is really getting into the car for a ride, not to go out and have sex with the driver," he said.

But hitchhiking cases are often unclear because no one can say that the girl didn't "encourage" the driver," Eggleton explained. "If a girl gets into a car, sits up close to the driver and acts sexy, how can you call it rape when he takes her up on it?"

EGGLETON said a classic case for hitchhiking-rape is when a girl accepts a ride, the guy tells her not to get out, drives to an isolated place, rapes her and then throws her out of the car.

In that case, there is no willful cooperation on the part of the girl and it will be a reasonably easy case to prosecute, he said.

But on other hand, take the case of the girl who takes a ride, cuddles up close to the guy, has a few drinks and then goes to a motel. At the motel she decides she doesn't like what's going on.

"That isn't a case of real rape, she was cooperating and leading the guy on," he added.

Romulus directories to be delivered soon

The Jaycees will receive more than 8,000 copies of the 1973-74 city directory near the end of July, and will begin delivery soon afterwards. Information about the city, and a list of local merchants will be included in the directory.

Also included is tax information for both the city and the school district and a city map.

DON'T WASTE NATURAL GAS.

The McDermotts' new Gas water heater just can't say no.

To showering. To dishwashing. To laundering. Anything that calls for hot water gets it—whenever it's needed. Because the McDermotts replaced their old water heater with a new, efficient Gas water heater. And it even operates for less than one third the cost of a comparable electric unit.

Whether your water heater needs replacing or not, you can save Natural Gas (and money, too) if you'll fix leaky hot water faucets promptly; operate your washing machine with capacity loads or use the water level control; use your dishwasher only when it is fully loaded, remember to lower the water heating setting if you used a higher temperature when laundering; and drain a pail of water from the water heater once a month to remove sediment from the tank and increase heating efficiency.

And if your water heater does need replacing, see the new, efficient, Gas-saving, money-saving models at dealers, plumbers or Michigan Consolidated Gas Company business offices.

Trial by television

Nixon must not succumb to circus hearing

President Nixon will speak out about the Watergate scandal when the Senate Watergate committee completes that phase of its probe, probably early in August...a White House spokesman told The Associated Press.

The same spokesman said the President will not appear before the Senate committee - citing constitutional powers of the Presidency.

THEN CAME the report that under no circumstances would the President allow the Senate committee to sift through Presidential papers - as was the case during testimony volunteered by former White House counsel John W. Dean II.

The now epic Watergate television soap-opera drama serves no useful purpose. Each day new innuendos are proclaimed as the so-called gospel truth-all aimed at the President.

When the President finally speaks out on the Watergate scandal - let us hope he can remove the cloud of despair once and for all.

The sickening part of the Watergate scandal is that it tarnishes all persons serving in government - from the local city council level, right on up to the Congress and the White House.

PAPERBACKS, RECORDS, night club acts, bumper stickers - and political animals are capitalizing to the hilt. And the longer the show goes on - via the tv tube and newspapers and magazines across the country...the image of democracy suffers.

Yet, out of this mess, if it's any solace-democracy will survive. No armed coups, firing squads... just dirty linen for the world to witness.

And I never imagined the day would come when you'd read in this niche that "until proven guilty," the President is innocent. But it's happened.

I vividly recall the Joe McCarthy episode over the same tv tubes. And each day new headlines and innuendos. In those days if you collected Russian stamps you'd be accused of being a communist.

THOUGH THE MCCARTHY and the Watergate hearings bear no similarity - in subject matter that is - they do ring with the same kind of innuendos - and this time the accused is the President.

Under no circumstance should the President of the United States go before the television-happy Senate committee. If he did, it would be a circus far greater than a Barnum and Bailey production.

At the same time, we support the President's position that to open Presidential files to the same Senate Committee would cause great harm to our security - at home and abroad.

In the latest Gallup Poll, 71 percent of Americans questioned by the national poll survey, expressed belief President Nixon was involved in the Watergate bugging or cover-up; but only 18 per cent feel he should be compelled to leave office.

DID YOU expect anything different? After being served a daily diet of "Dean believes Nixon knew..." what else could come from a survey.

And while the nation see-saws over the Watergate scandal; inflation threatens our economy, the oil companies claim there's no crude oil (and that's questionable), the dollar shrinks, and Ted Kennedy shares the platform with George Wallace in the name of party unit and Kennedy's Presidential fortunes in 1976.

For the good of America and the Presidency, we urge the President to speak out with no hitches, no strings.

Whether Democrat, Republican, or Independent - there's too much at stake to allow the Watergate scandal and the Senate television drama hour to carry on through the summer. America is hurting. We can ill afford to hurt when the priority needs of our country are forced to a backseat to Watergate.

WE AGREE the guilty must pay...but what we've been forced to witness on television is no hearing - that my friend is a trial. And according to the courts, television crewmen and press photographers have no place in a court of law.

They call it a Senate hearing...I call it a shameful circus. As shameful as the Watergate scandal.

JOHN KENNEDY had his "Bay of Pigs" disaster, Dwight Eisenhower had the U-2 spy flight fiasco; Lyndon Johnson was stuck with Vietnam; and now Richard Nixon is fighting to preserve the integrity of the White House.

Fortunately for all of us Democracy is greater than one man. We shall survive. We have...for 197 turbulent years.

Would save on costs

Wallace Arrowsmith's Quad-city drainage merits consideration

A quad-city storm drainage authority may be in the offing for Wayne, Canton Township, Romulus and Van Buren Township.

When former Wayne City Manager Wallace Arrowsmith proposed the quad-city venture, he wisely said: "It takes years to get through the red tape that this type of project requires. If we start now it will cost less than it will if we wait until the area is developed and then try to tear it up to put in drainage."

Though only in the talking stage, the proposed concept should be pursued by the four Western Wayne County communities.

Arrowsmith's proposal could be his finest in the many years of public service provided by the now retired Wayne city official.

Arrowsmith said the proposed quad-city drainage project would also serve an area resting between John Hix and Hannan to Michigan Avenue.

To carry the project, Wayne officials have already met with their counterparts in Romulus, Canton and Van Buren townships.

At this juncture, it behooves the four communities to give serious thought to a joint venture to provide drainage at a reasonable cost to their taxpaying citizens.

The advantage to the four communities to share in the construction of a main line is simple...sharing the cost four ways.

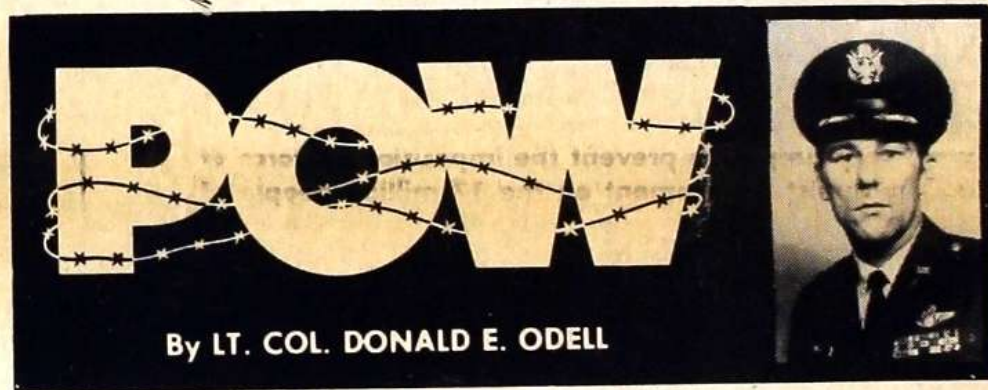

And by joining in the Wayne venture; Canton, Van Buren and Romulus would only have to pay for connectors.

On paper the drainage proposal sounds positive. Serious study and consideration may prove it to be a tax-saving cooperative venture.

The daily routine of camp life was designed to break the prisoners of war mentally and physically. They were told: "You must sit in your rooms and think of your crimes." Details for this sketch by Macomb Daily Art Director Bob Russell.

"This is one thing I cannot do. I will not do that. I would rather die than do that and be a traitor to my country..."

By LT. COL. DONALD E. ODELL

(As told to Macomb Daily Editor Maury Vincent)

'Heartbreak Hotel' and other camps of despair

Col. Odell tells his story-part 4

Copyright 1973 by The Macomb Daily

It was later at the dungeon type of prison called the "Heartbreak Hotel" that I was to catch-up on time from other POWs and realize I had spent Tuesday night through Monday morning in the interrogation room.

Our biggest fear under this type of continuous and brutal interrogation was that once they got us talking one thing would lead to another and they would be getting some useful or "sensitive" information. I remember during those days of interrogation being shown lists of squadrons and pilot rosters, some of whom I acknowledged knowing. This information was no different from that contained in base newspapers and was readily available.

In another matter, however, I was asked the future date of a target which, because of a security leak, had been cancelled and then rescheduled prior to my shoot-down. It was to have been a hit on a MIG base. I said I had no knowledge of the target.

The torture began anew.

Dish of rice

Eventually I was left alone for periods of up to a half hour, I would judge. Well into the interrogation I was given a small dish of rice and boiled pumpkin and one small cup of water, the first I had since being shot down.

At one point, I was told by "Bugs" to write down every question and answer asked of me. I indicated I had no use of my hands. Indeed, I could only use the thumb and forefinger of my right hand and the thumb of my left.

All this got me was another beating for about an hour in which the guards worked me over pretty well. The next time they asked me, I said I'd try. I fumbled around and practiced for a couple of hours or so but still couldn't write legibly. Periodically "Bugs" would come in to check on my progress. If it didn't suit him, the beatings were repeated. I decided, after losing consciousness during one of the beatings, to try a little harder and by moving my whole arm from the shoulder was able to put down a few words. At this point my interrogators demanded an autobiography, including background, school, military assignments, family data and such.

I refused again but after another extended beating decided I could get away with a rather vague biography. I certainly didn't want any pressures put on my family back home by those whom we felt were sympathetic to the North Vietnam cause. I gave no addresses, saying simply my family lived on the base at Selfridge.

Forced confession

The next item demanded of me was a written confession admitting my "crimes" against North Vietnam and taping a message for propaganda purposes in which I was to denounce my country, my government, my President and the American people for "aggressive" actions.

This message would be piped out on the Voice of Vietnam (Radio Hanoi) to U.S. Forces in South Vietnam, telling them the Viet Cong were correct in their struggle and for them to refuse to fight, not fire their weapons and kill their officers, if necessary.

"This is one thing I cannot do," I told my interrogators. "I will not do that. I would rather die than do that and be a traitor to my country."

I was put back into the ropes and tortured for several hours to a point I figured this was the end. But I was determined not to break and do what they asked.

Proud American

I don't mean to sound like a hero, by any means, but I just refused to betray my country. After a while the ropes were taken off my body and iron shackles with bars put around my ankles. The guards then jumped up and down on those bars. They acted and looked like kids on a pogo stick. But it wasn't funny at all. When they tired of this, they turned me over on my stomach, ran a rope around my neck, anchored it to my feet and slowly pulled until my body was bent backward and up.

I lost consciousness again.

When I woke up, Bugs was sitting at the desk. He asked me if I would now do what they asked. Again I refused but instead of resuming the beatings, Bugs slammed his fist on the table, picked up his tape recorder and left. I suspect they realize some damage had been done and didn't want to aggravate it further. (At Dayton, x-rays showed a small diagonal break at the base of my skull. Luckily, it was not a cross-section break.)

As I lay there, trying to recover my senses and physical strength, I was fed another portion of rice and some water. As yet, I had not received any medical attention. My face felt puffed and split around the lips and my body ached and pulsed.

But aside from the physical hurt I was mentally dejected. I felt like a traitor for having given in to some of the questioning and was upset with myself because I hadn't been able to take more punishment.

"After a while the ropes were taken off my body and iron shackles with bars put around my ankles."

Retain dignity

I learned later this was a common attitude among the POWs who had been subjected to such treatment. I was to learn, in my case and that of all newcomers to the prison, that no more was really expected of us and we were encouraged by the others in this respect so that we could maintain some sort of dignity.

Such assurances were welcome upon arrival at "Heartbreak Hotel" ... a dismal dungeon-type of prison where the individual first realized he was a captive of the enemy.

I was placed in a dark, cement cell about 12 feet by 8 feet, containing only two cement slabs that served as beds. Here I received my "prisoner" issue...a metal cup, toothbrush, small tube of toothpaste that had to last three months, a bar of lye-type soap (also to last three months), a pair of sandals cut from a truck tire, black pants and undershirt, a small towel, two thin blankets (with holes, filthy and blood-stained), a straw mat and a crude netting to ward off mosquitoes.

I, Lt. Col. Donald E. Odell, had officially been designated as a prisoner of war.

Depressing mood

It is here that the full realization hit, and it was a depressing one. What did the future hold. I wondered ... how long would I be here ... does my family know I'm alive ... will I be able to endure the torment?

On these thoughts began a daily routine that was not to vary for months.

At around 5 a.m. a gong rang somewhere and we awakened only to sit on our beds until 7 a.m., when the door opened and we were permitted to take our chamber buckets outside the compound to empty them. Occasionally, we were permitted to scoop water from a well and throw it over our bodies in a crude semblance of a shower. All the time our guards were screaming at us. "Quickly, quickly! to keep us moving. Between 10 and 11 a.m. we were brought a meal consisting of rice, boiled pumpkin or cabbage and a small side dish of mashed fish in salt brine ... fins, heads, scales and all.

It was not very palatable.

Buggy food

Generally, the food was dirty and buggy, and it took a little getting used to. We tried a little at a time until, after a few days, hunger proved the master.

At around 11:30 a.m. another gong rang a signal that we were to lie on our mats until around 2 p.m. We just sat there until a second meal was brought in between 4 and 5 p.m., basically the same type of food as before.

From that time until the gong rang again around 9 p.m. we paced the cell. At the gong, we made our beds, put up the netting and tried to sleep.

This environ was completely sterile ... there was nothing in the cell except the slab beds and the buckets.

"You must sit in your room and think about your crimes," we were told by our captors.

Forced to bow

The guards also played a sort of "get 'em up" game. Each time they looked through the peephole in the door, we would have to get up, march to the door and bow to them. They really made the most out of this.

On Wednesday, October 25, at about 5:30 p.m., I was blindfolded and moved by truck to another compound which we called the "Annex" adjacent to the camp known as the "Zoo." I was taken into a room where my blindfold was removed. There in the room, which measured about 18x18, were three other prisoners, one of whom I had known while on assignment at an air base in Texas. He was Maj. Robert Barnett, who had been shot down two weeks before me. We were to share that cell for six months.

From this time until the fall of 1970 we POWs spoke only in whispers.

As far as I personally was concerned, sharing a cell with Maj. Barnett was a tremendous asset. He had undergone some physical therapy training and worked with me to get movement back in my hands. It was to be another two years before I really got any feeling in the skin surface of my arms and hands and able to pick up my head up fully or move from side to side.

Bamboo beds

In this cell, we had strips of bamboo for beds (later replaced with wooden boards nailed together). There was no furniture and we either sat on the floor or leaned against the wall. When permitted, we sat on the beds.

It was miserably cold this time of year, windy and rainy with the temperatures in the low 40s. Our thin blankets were no help. To keep warm, we ran in place beside our beds. The food was still inadequate in quality and quantity. A green weed soup that tasted like jet fuel smells was added to our diet. The weeds grew in a swamp next to the compound.

After six months at the "Annex," I was moved to the "Zoo" ... the main camp, where I was moved in with two other POWs I had not known before.

Here again the almost daily interrogation was continued as the North Vietnamese attempted to force us, by brutality and humiliation, to serve as propaganda machines for them.

While we were constantly subjected to threats of physical violence to do their bidding, individual brutality varied depending on the guards.

Code signals

It was here that an elaborate communications network between the prisoners of war was set up. Within our building there were seven cells, each

Col. Odell tells a story of despair and faith

Letters from America improved prison life

about 13x13 and housing three men. In these windowless, airless rooms we managed, by tapping the walls or through small cracks in doors or spaces under doors to flash code signals from cell to cell.

This communications system was extremely important to us because it served to unify us against our captors. When men in adjacent cells were subjected to brutality they were comforted by tapped messages. This helped to keep up our morale.

One of the officers with whom I lived over the next 15 months or so was often subjected to torturous interrogation designed to force him to appear before a foreign delegation visiting the camp. He was told what questions would be asked of him and what answers he was to give. After repeated torture he did appear before that delegation but he felt like a traitor for doing so.

We tried to convince him that his country expected no more of him and that a man could take just so much. To keep our minds and bodies active, we counted as we paced the cell and from this evolved into a system of memorizing poems or songs and gravitated from that to names of POWs.

Eventually, after many weeks and months, we were able to recite as we paced our cells the names of 478 prisoners in alphabetical order, including the rank, first name, middle initial and last name. These mental gymnastics helped us keep our minds sharp in the face of camp routine.

As for walking, I figure that in a three-year period we averaged about 10 miles per day in our cell or almost 11,000 miles (The distance from Hanoi to mid-America is approximately 11,800 miles).

Active minds

In this type of sterile atmosphere, in which we were allowed nothing that would help us pass the time and keep our minds active, we spent hours on cost analysis of construction projects or whatever came to mind. Through our communications network we were able to relay various elements of a project to a senior officer elsewhere in the building who had been in construction. He sent back bits of information that helped us arrive at what he found to be a pretty accurate set of figures.

The guards and interrogators were always snooping around, hoping to catch us talking (whispering, really) or communicating with one another. If they suspected any such activity, we were forced to kneel with our arms in the air. Often a man would be falsely accused by the guards and taken out and beaten.

All the while, the same daily routine prevailed and the time dragged on into weeks and months.

In February of 1969 I got my first package from home but I was permitted to receive only a small portion of the articles, mostly toiletries.

Kidney infection

In July of 1969 I came down with a kidney infection and a respiratory problem. After several weeks of hovering near unconsciousness, a medic-type of guard gave me several vitamin shots but it took me several months to completely overcome the infection.

Later that July I was moved to another building and placed in a room with three other POWs whom I did not know. It was here in September, when I came down with yellow jaundice as a result of the kidney infection that a "doctor" tended to me for the first time since my capture.

He was an elderly man who had come from Hanoi to the prison to tend to a few of us. This was the man we identified as "Dr. Zorba." I began receiving regular medication that got me on the road to recovery after a month but I still had pains in the liver area for the next year.

It was during this time that we were first allotted three cigarettes a day, and for those of us who smoked it was a delicious moment. In November the cigarette ration was increased to six and at the same time we noticed a change in the treatment toward us. We began to get a tidbit for breakfast, a piece of bread fried in sugar-water composition that served as dessert.

Letters helped

We thought something big had happened on the international scene. Because Ho Chi Minh had died in September, we feared his "humane" policy would be scrapped and we wondered what would happen to us. We later learned that the many thousands of letters of protest about our treatment, written primarily by school children throughout America, had caused the change of heart.

These letters really put the pressure on, we learned from the new POW arrivals who brought us up to date on what was happening in America and the world.

In December I received my second package from home and, for the first time, I am permitted to write home. This is the first official word that I am a prisoner. With the receipt of the second package, we were told we would be permitted to receive packages every two months. These consisted mainly of canned and packaged foods, gum, kool-Aid, dried fruit and powdered milk ... all of which supplemented our diet.

It was a great experience to get those packages. During this time we could see signs that the North Vietnamese seemed to be relenting in their treatment of us. We even hoped that they would begin opening our cells and permit us to visit one another.

In January, however, they reversed their attitude.

What others said...

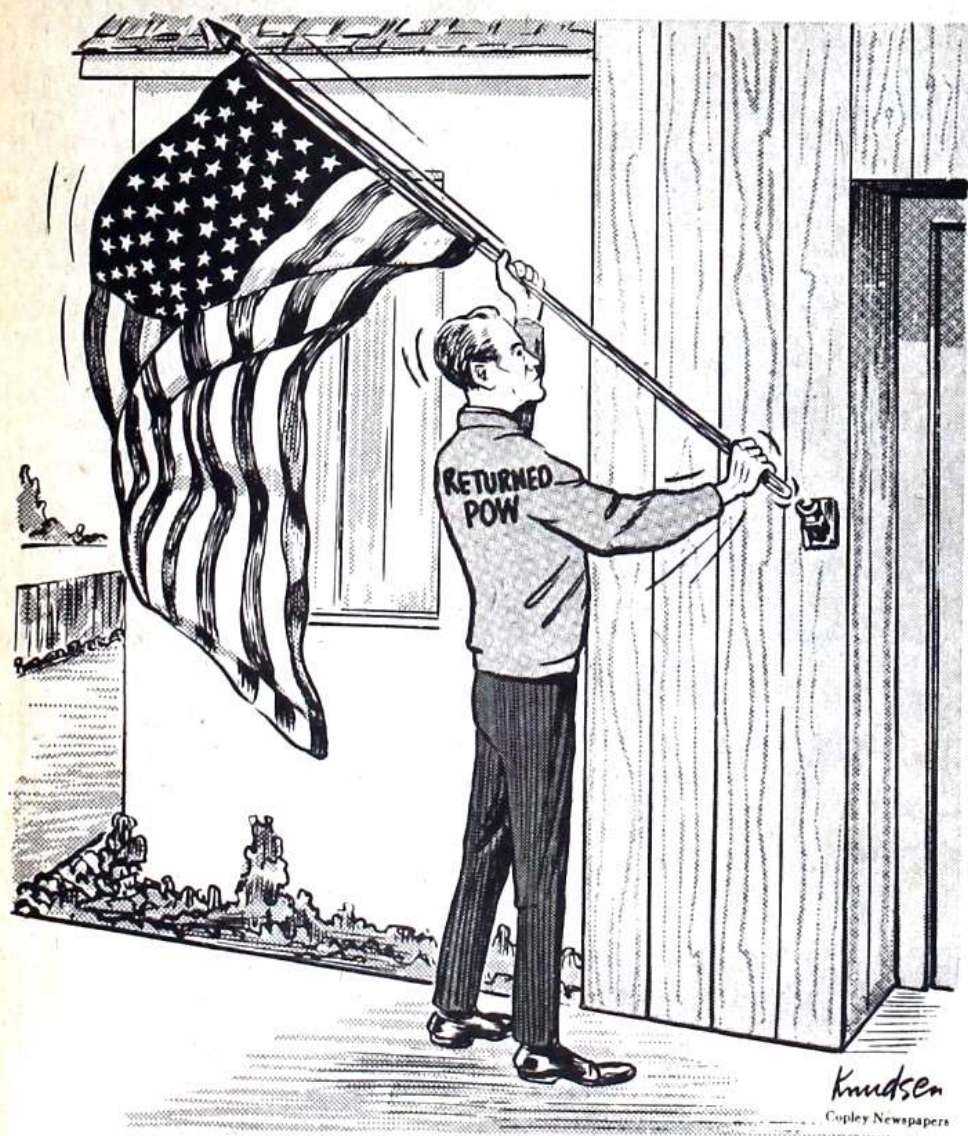

Richard Nixon

"Because the war has been so long, and because it has been so difficult, there is a tendency for us to forget how the United States became involved, and why. It would be very easy now, looking back, to point out the mistakes that were made in the conduct of the war, to even question whether or not the United States should have become involved in the first place. But let us get one thing very clear: When, during the course of President Kennedy's Administration, the first men were sent to Vietnam for combat, when, during the course of President Johnson's Administration others were sent there to continue the activities in the military area, they were sent there for the most selfless purpose that any nation has ever fought a war.

"We did not go to South Vietnam, and our men did not go there, for the purpose of conquering North Vietnam. Our men did not go to South Vietnam for the purpose of getting bases in South Vietnam or acquiring territory or domination over that part of the world. They went for a very high purpose, and that purpose can never be taken away from them or this country. It was, very simply, to prevent the imposition by force of a Communist government on the 17 million people of South Vietnam. That was our goal and we achieved that goal, and we can be proud that we stuck it out until we did reach that goal." — President Nixon in his remarks to a joint session of the South Carolina Legislature, Feb. 20, 1973.

Jane Fonda

"... I think they are lying. I think they are lying and I think they are not only going to have to live with the fact that they were carrying out acts of murder for the rest of their lives ... They are also going to have to live with the fact that they are lying on their consciences. It was not — it was not a policy of the North Vietnamese to torture prisoners." — Jane Fonda on the ABC News, April 3, 1973.

Area boys see museum during patrol outing

Keith and Kevin Darlington, both 14, were among nine area members of the Civil Air Patrol (CAP) who recently visited the U.S. Air Force Museum.

The Darlington, of 975 Sumpter Road, are both cadets in the Belleville Flight of CAP.

Their parents are also members of CAP. Fred Darlington is the leadership officer for the local unit, while Betty Darlington serves as the unit's activities officer.

The recent visit to the museum included a view of planes dating as far back as the 1909 Wright Flier, the first aircraft built for and purchased by the U.S. Army.

The Darlington, especially enjoyed the L-4 "Grasshopper," a light observation plane with CAP insignia, used by the CAP during World War II for anti-submarine patrol.

The trip to the museum was one of the many field trips open to CAP cadets in the Belleville area. Other trips include a week in Washington D.C. and a week in the Cape Kennedy area in Florida. Other special activities are model rocketry, karate classes, radio operation and flight observers training.

The Civil Air Patrol Cadet program is open to boys and girls between the ages of 13 and 17. The program includes training in aerospace education, military leadership and emergency services, such as search and rescue, disaster relief and civil defense.

Area teacher completes study

Rosemary Anderson of 6635 Belleville Road, Belleville, was among 14 persons who completed a workshop in teaching outdoors at the Nature Center of Kensington Metropark near Milford.

The class was taught by Suzanne Stevens, an instructor at Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti.

NOTE THIS, FELLOW ROMULUS CITIZENS

GOOD SHOPPING IS A PRIMARY NEED IN ROMULUS

Local businesses are spread far apart and are not enough to satisfy all family needs. In considering volume, choice assortment, and easy parking, people go to other places where they can find these essentials.

We can do many things to help resolve this business shortage. One of them is to patronize the businesses we already have. Another is to give attention to beautification, cleanliness, inviting window displays and signs, in short, a glamorization of the Romulus business districts.

Romulus must look as if it wanted and expected people to shop there.

No single idea is going to solve the problem of getting super markets, department stores, men and women apparel shops, etc. here in Romulus.

As your representative on the Romulus City Council I will encourage and support all ideas that will contribute to Romulus business development.

This is one of the issues I have been working on as a charter member of the Romulus Chamber of Commerce, owner of Dolores' Resale Shop, and concerned citizen. Operating in a bigger field on the Romulus City Council I will have more opportunities for action.

Mobil van brings advice

Vet counselors to tour state

Thirty-six Michigan cities will be visited by a mobile van of the Veterans Administration in a two-month-long tour of the state beginning on July 21.

Grand Rapids will be the kick-off point for the beginning of the unique program which is intended to "bring the government to the people."

Michigan will be the 30th state to have the mobile van program, according to a VA regional office spokesman in Detroit. The program was launched in Texas in 1972 and has been extended throughout the country because of its success.

VETERANS Administration counselors out of Detroit will staff the van as it tours the state providing information for veterans of all wars on their benefits.

As of the beginning of the month, the VA red, white and blue vans have visited 909 cities across the nation and have been contacted by more than 50,000 veterans.

The vans are a portion of the National Program for Veterans initiated by President Richard M. Nixon to aid returning veterans from Vietnam. Staff personnel will be able to help veterans by referral to other agencies with problems not directly related to VA responsibility.

The program in Grand Rapids will be a formed dedication of the van service for the state with the head of the VA from Washington, Donald E. Johnson, giving the main address. State, county and national figures will participate in the dedication.

THE VANS will remain in Grand Rapids until the 24th when they will continue on their state-wide journey to the other 35 cities. This is the first time in history that such program has been initiated for veterans.

The VA pointed out that almost one-half of the population of Michigan is affected in some way by veteran benefits and provisions.

Twenty-two percent of the 50,000 veterans seeking help from the VA's mobile van service are from minority groups.

During the first four months of this year, 27,233 interviews were conducted in the vans and 6,111 of them were with minority group veterans. Vans have now travelled through 29 states and visited over 800 communities.

County urges farmers to continue pledges

Western Wayne County farmers who certified compliance with 1973 farm program requirements are reminded to continue to carry out their commitment for the remainder of the year.

Arthur Monks, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) County committee, says that 340 farms in Wayne county will have certified compliance with this year's farm program by the July 13 deadline.

Certification amounts to a pledge by the farmer as to his program acreage, his acreage set aside from production, if any and that he has complied with all program provisions, Monks said.

Monks cautioned that producers found out of compliance with those could lose all or part of their program payment.

Spot checks will continue throughout the remainder of the year. He also reminded producers who graze or hay set-aside acreage that they must notify the county ASCS office.

If a producer feels he does not understand the rules for set-aside acreage, he should contact the county ASCS office immediately, Monks said.

Area 4-H club youths take citizenship course

Ten area 4-H Club members were among the 34 Wayne and Oakland County members who participated in a recent citizenship course which culminated in a visit to the capital in Lansing.

The members, all from the New Boston and Belleville Romulus area, were treated to a half-hour visit with Michigan Lieutenant Governor, James Brickley.

She's in players group

Dorothy Florian teaches others

By MAUREEN McDONALD
Enterprise-Roman Staff Writer

"You'll never get me on stage," Dorothy Florian said as the butterflies filled her stomach and the jitters gripped her all over.

Those famous "last words" were spoken back in her days with the Mercy College theater group. Now she is membership and publicity chairperson of the Belleville Community Players. And she is teaching other people the ways to avoid theater jitters.

"Sure, you panic at first," Ms. Florian said. "But once you are on stage you don't even see the audience. You become that particular character in that particular scene."

FOR EXAMPLE, Ms. Florian said that her six children came to see one of her last stage performances at Belleville High School auditorium, and she did not know they were in the audience until after the show.

The players learn loads of stage advice in their weekly Tuesday workshop meetings, held in the school auditorium. Workshop topics range from make-up application and stage warm-up techniques to the aspects of stage lighting. The group has many experienced actors and actresses as members to draw upon for workshop lessons.

Jim Lightfoot was a member of the Wayne State University Civic Players. Jean Daniels toured with the Nankin - Mills Players.

AMATEURS AND experienced actors alike get their chances to be in the limelight.

The players recently staged "The Final Dress Rehearsal," a play that is a take-off on Cinderella. It is about a group of actors practicing for their final show, and the goofs and mishaps that accompany their floundering attempts at professionalism.

"We had more fun doing this," Ms. Florian said. "The play was typical of everything we've gone through in the past."

The group will begin tryouts for a series of children's plays in August. Meanwhile the group finds time to socialize and recruit new members.

LAST FRIDAY the players held an international party, where members were invited to come in ethnic dress. Each member was asked to bring a friend who might be interested in joining the theater troupe.

The troupe has about 15 active members.

Ms. Florian invites any one interested in joining The Players to call her at 697-7843 or call Charlene Lobb at 485-8237.

Afro-American ethnic festival opens Friday

Detroit's "soul" will be on the riverfront this weekend, during the Afro-American Ethnic Festival. The free event, on the Cobo Hall riverfront, will officially be opened at 6 p.m. Friday.

The Rod Rodgers dance company, originally from Detroit, will entertain following the ceremony. "Plush," a vocal group, will sing later in the evening.

Saturday has been proclaimed Mary Wilson Day by Mayor Roman Gribbs. Ms. Wilson, an original member of the Supremes, will receive a special plaque from festival organizer, Dick Scott of Metropolitan Arts Complex.

The entertainment Saturday will include a variety of performers, and a rock-gospel group — Rev. Columbus Mann and the Spirited Ones.

Sunday's program will open at noon with the Rev. Robert Grant followed by the Ted Thomas Chorale. Then comes the Mausi theatrical group with a drama about the life of Nat Turner written by Paula Hankins. Laverna Mason will sing.

Festival hours are 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. Friday, and noon to 11 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Holland State Park offers beach, dunes

Campers who like to combine a fine beach, sand dunes and unusual area attractions should try Holland State Park, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

Located seven miles west of Holland, along Lake Michigan, the park is one of the state's most popular, attracting 1,102,018 campers last year, largest number in the southern half of the Lower Peninsula.

Despite its 342 sites, Holland fills rapidly in the summer and one usually has to arrive in the morning to camp there. Its 143 acres places it among the smaller parks in size.

BEHIND ITS appeal, perhaps, are its fine beach, especially good for children, and towering sand dunes. The beach, three-quarters of a mile long, and the dunes offer good sand hiking. Couple these features with the attractions at Holland and the combination is almost unbeatable as a camper magnet.

The campground is divided into two sections. Along Lake Michigan are 144 sites, while 179 are at nearby Lake Macatawa. At the latter, red and white pine growth offer shade and privacy. To swim, however, campers must walk nearly a mile to the beach on Lake Michigan.

Other features of the park include a store in the park, bathhouse, laundry, library and a dumping station.

HOLLAND STATE Park isn't the best park for fishing, but perch can be caught from the pier and breakwater.

Near Holland State Park are a variety of attractions which are among the best in western Michigan. They include:

- Windmill Island, an unusual municipal park on a 36-acre island in downtown Holland. It has canals, a working drawbridge, a miniature Dutch village and extensive tulip gardens. They comprise an authentic setting for the park's chief feature, a 200-year-old operating windmill called "De Zwann." The windmill was imported from the Netherlands.
- Wooden Shoe Factory, two miles southeast on US-31, where wooden shoes are made with European machinery and hand finished.
- DUTCH VILLAGE on US-31, a mile north of the junction with State 21. Here are flowering gardens, picturesque buildings, Dutch folk dancing, and marketplace with imported Dutch goods.

Riggs family looking forward to 100th reunion

BY LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

The Riggs family, which can claim residence in this community as far back as 1836, is looking forward to meeting for its 100th reunion July 29. Glenn Romine will travel from Fort Wayne, Indiana to reside at the one o'clock dinner which will kick off the group's centennial year. His brother, Merle Romine, who is vice-president is expected to attend from Berkley. The men are the grandsons of Nicholas and Esther Ann Riggs Romine for whom Romine Road near New Boston is named.

Members of the family's genealogy committee have looked into the family background and come up with a number of facts about Peter Riggs and his wife, Harriet, who were the first of the Riggses to come to Michigan. Peter, born near Newark, New Jersey in 1776, married Harriet Dunham in 1815 or 1817 and came to Michigan to lay claim to the land located on and around what is now known as the Kuchta farm.

On the death of their father in 1863, his two daughters, Harriet and Clarissa, inherited the property. Clarissa later married Minor Savage and they settled on the property to the east (of what is now Haggerty Road) while

Lisa Marie is her name

Their first child, a baby girl, was born June 30 to Douglas and Judy McCully of 400 Liberty Street, Belleville. Making her debut at Annapolis Hospital, Wayne, Lisa Marie's weight was recorded at 7 lbs. - 9 oz.

The newcomer is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred McCully and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Melton, all of Belleville.

the Riggses took up residence on the west side.

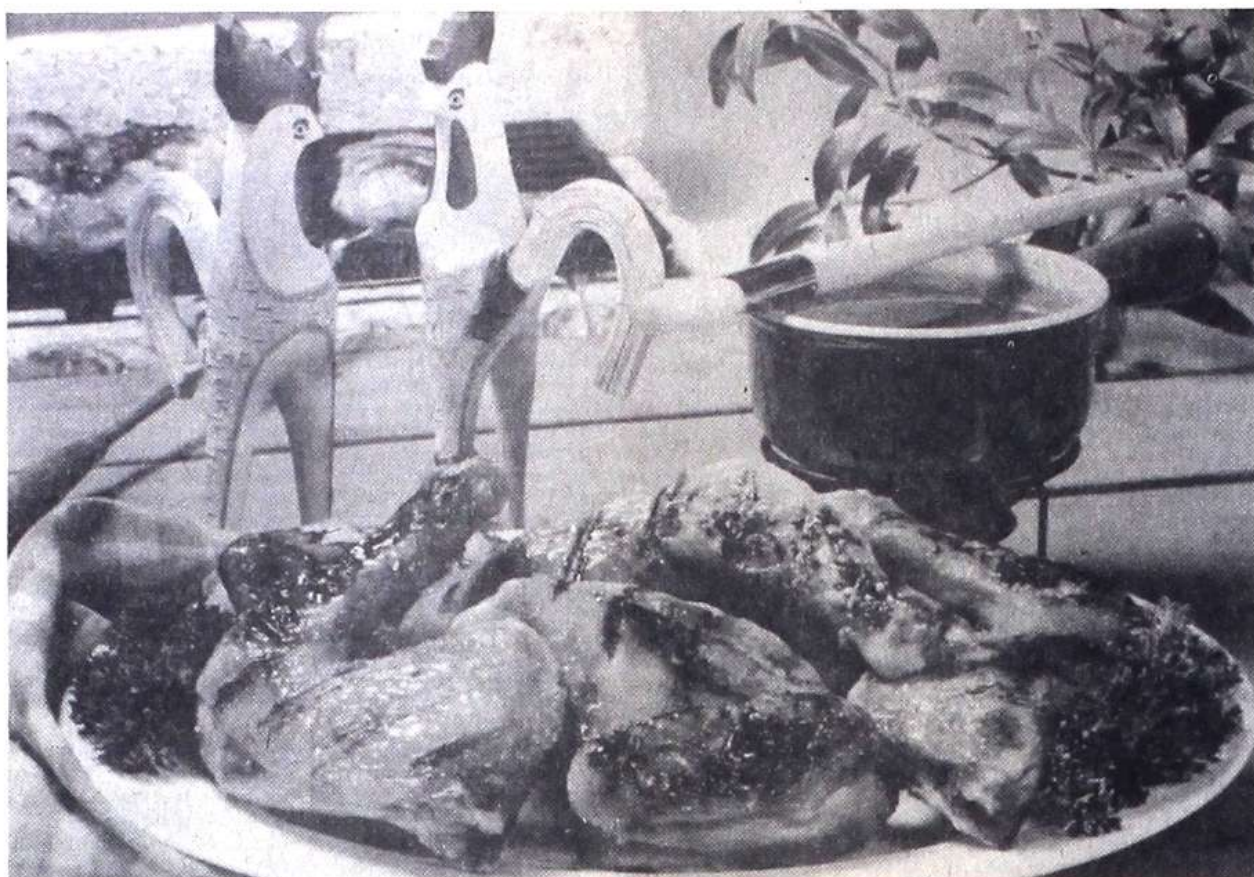

OF PETER and Harriet's 10 children, seven were born in New York State; Cynthia, Dunham, Gilbert, Loren, Sarah, Hiram, and Harriet. Two, Esther Ann and William, were born in Pennsylvania and the youngest, Emeline, was born in Michigan.

All have lived most of their lives in or near Wayne County except for the eldest, Cynthia, who married a man from Canada and lived and died there.

The gathering of the clan began on New Year's Day, 1873, when Mr. and Mrs. Dunham Riggs invited his brothers and sisters and their families to dinner at their home near French Landing. These get-togethers were continued each year with the group alternating as hosts. When the families became too large to meet in homes, the dinners were planned for summertime when the lawns or nearby wooded areas could be utilized for the affairs.

The eldest living member of the family, Mrs. Elmer (Helen) Riggs, just recently returned from the hospital where she was treated for a broken hip. She lives on Haggerty Road in the homestead established by her husband's father, William Riggs, with her granddaughter, Marilyn (Herkimer) Watson, and her husband, Bill. She is hoping to attend the big reunion come the 29th.

About 60 to 75 are expected to arrive for the celebration with the Canadian branch of the family coming in from Melbourne, Woodstock and Seaford. Others from Indiana, Lansing, Howell, Berkley, and neighboring cities will join in and be recorded as having attended the 'BIG ONE' - the 100th.

SPEEDY SAUCES — Convenient, ready-to-use apricot preserves are blended with packaged onion soup mix and bottled Italian-style dressing for a superb glaze for chicken cooked over coals. Of course, the glaze is equally delicious on chicken grilled indoors. Other jams and jellies may be used to spark other meats being prepared outdoors. Recipes really aren't necessary but for those who prefer, the exact ingredients for a hamburger and sparerib sauce are included.

Jams, jellies sauce it up!

A jar of jam or jelly makes it easy for outdoor chefs to give new interest and flavor to barbecued meats with minimum effort.

Just spoon the jam or jelly of your choice into a small heavy saucepan. Place it at the edge of the grill — away from the intense coals — and stir occasionally until the fruit spread melts. When the meats are about half done, brush them occasionally with the melted jam or jelly for a beautiful glaze with delicious pure fruit flavor.

Use the spreads plain, just as they come from the jar, or add some flavorings. Apple jelly with madeira wine and a dash of lemon juice, for example, is especially appropriate for grilled ham. Or, blend apple or currant jelly with a little curry powder for lamb. Grape preserves with chili sauce and horseradish is excellent for beef.

Recipes really are not necessary, but for those who prefer to follow exact listings of ingredients, here are some sauce suggestions for chicken, hamburgers and spareribs.

APRICOT ONION SAUCE FOR CHICKEN

1 jar (10 ounces) apricot preserves
½ cup bottled Italian-style salad dressing
1 envelope packaged onion soup mix
Combine all ingredients in a small heavy saucepan; stir until mixed. Place at edge of grill away from intense coals. Stir occasionally or until preserves melt. Grill chicken quarters 8 inches above gray coals for 15 minutes on each side. Brush occasionally with sauce and grill another 10 minutes on each side, turning at least once.
Makes 1-½ cups sauce or enough for 6 chicken quarters.

GRAPE HORSE RADISH SAUCE FOR HAMBURGERS

1 jar (10 ounces) whole grape preserves
½ cup chili sauce
¼ cup prepared horseradish sauce
2 teaspoons prepared brown mustard
Combine all ingredients in a small heavy saucepan; stir until mixed. Place at edge of grill away from intense coals. Stir occasionally or until preserves melt. Grill hamburgers 8 inches above gray coals 2 to 3 minutes on each side. Brush with sauce and continue to cook until done, turning at least once.
Makes 1-¾ cups sauce or enough for 12 hamburgers.

MARMALADE SOY SAUCE FOR SPARERIBS

1 jar (10 ounces) orange marmalade
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons sherry
½ teaspoon garlic powder
1 tablespoon prepared yellow mustard
Combine all ingredients in a small heavy saucepan; stir until mixed. Place at edge of grill away from intense coals. Stir occasionally or until marmalade melts. Grill ribs (partially cooked in simmering water for 30 minutes) 8 inches above gray coals for 5 minutes on each side. Brush with sauce and continue to cook 8 to 10 minutes, turning frequently and continuing to brush with sauce.
Makes 1-¾ cups sauce or enough for 4 pounds spareribs.

The couple plan to be married in the summer of 1974.

MISS SKSZEK

Weight Watchers chef will visit Belleville

Chef Larry Janes specializes in "showing people how great, easy, fun and economical cooking on the Weight Watchers Program can be."

As chef for Weight Watchers of Eastern Michigan, Inc., and Central Michigan, Inc., he exuberantly performing demonstrations which illustrate both the ease of preparation and use of familiar every-day foods which are characteristic of cooking according to the weight control program. Chef Janes regularly appears at Weight Watchers classes and public exhibitions where he serves a full course dinner while explaining the Weight Watchers Program.

Hot or cold -- no in between!

To make sure your picnics are fun and not dangerous, MDA's food inspectors say, "Keep food hot, keep it cold, or don't keep it." Foods are generally safest when stored at temperatures above 140 degrees or below 45 degrees. Germs which may cause severe gastrointestinal upsets tend to thrive in foods kept at warm temperatures and not adequately refrigerated.

Culinary Arts classes were taken by Chef Janes in Paris, France, and in Livonia, Michigan. While working in an elegant restaurant downriver, Larry became a Weight Watchers member in Wyandotte and lost 72½ pounds in 16 weeks. His weight loss led him to become a Weight Watchers lecturer and in December, 1971, Larry became Chef for Weight Watchers members.

Chef Janes will be in Belleville July 26 to meet the group at Trinity Episcopal Church at 7 p.m.

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER

BY HAROLD REDISKE, DIRECTOR

Scores of successful advertisers know the magic in the word "you." Their ads stress benefits and advantages for your convenience, your comfort, your savings and economies, your safety, your protection, your pride, etc. Their ads talk in terms of "you" - not themselves. Their successes prove their method is not a hackneyed formula. A lesson can be learned from this.

People can and will profit if they put the other fellow's interest ahead of their own. People can make a better world for all to live in - if individuals place themselves and their interests behind those of others. It is a long established truth that when one cares enough for God and his fellow man, one can easily place himself in the third spot. It is also a proved, unsurprising truth that when this is done, one can live more happily ... and successfully...

VAN BUREN POLICE CHIEF and Mrs. John R. Willet will be at Metro Airport tomorrow to bid farewell to their houseguest of the past three weeks, Mrs. Susanna De Jong. Mrs. De Jong, who arrived here from Utrecht in the Netherlands on June 28, is the mother of Jonke De Jong who was the Willet's adopted daughter during her exchange student days in 1966.

The 68-year old visitor, who has thoroughly enjoyed her stay and the scenery around Belleville, particularly liked her visit to Belleville High School where her daughter graduated. She was also impressed with the composite pictures of each year's seniors at the school and was happy to see the local drug store where Jonke worked after classes.

Mrs. Willet also took her guest on a tour of Detroit and its riverfront; the University of Michigan; and several of our bigger shopping centers and also introduced her to watermelon and those all-American favorites, the hot dog and hamburger.

And although they are saying good-bye to each other tomorrow, Mrs. Willet and Mrs. De Jong hope to see each other again in the fall. Mrs. Willet is planning her third trip to the Netherlands in November and is looking forward to seeing her 'adopted' grandchild whose birth Jonke (now Mrs. Ad De Goede of Culenburg) is awaiting.

Cradle shower held in Trenton

THERE'S A PRETTY, yellow, blue and orange nursery being readied out at the Martinsville Road home of Bill and Mary Anne Emerson. And Sunday evening there were lots of new additions to add to the room — a cute clothes tree, a high chair, stroller, dressing table, and lots of items for the layette.

The Sunday afternoon shower at the Trenton home of Mrs. Richard (Grace) Sietz was responsible for the packed car which the Emersons drove home that night.

The two o'clock party included several baby-theme games, a salad luncheon and the presentation of gifts. The honoree's aunt and cousin, Celia Lipinski and Mary Lou Kelsey of Dexter, assisted with serving.

Prize winners for the day were Bessie Harris, a former neighbor of the honoree visiting here from Punta Gorda, Florida; her aunt, Julianna Hudge, also vacationing from Tarpon Springs, Florida; Rosemary Sietz and Mary Alice Sietz of Dexter; and Flo Hudge, Irene Sobocki, Shirley Hudge, and Lee Smith of Belleville.

Others attending from Belleville included Cynthia Pavelka, Lillian Sietz, Helen Sietz, Marge Emerson, Carol Sobocki, Grace Hudge, and Gertie Bies. Completing the guest list were friends from Grosse Pointe and Taylor.

Kowals fly to Hawaii for week's honeymoon

Christine Joy Bevard carried a bouquet of pastel-colored daisies, baby's breath and greens as she walked up the aisle of Grace Baptist Church with her father to become the bride of Robert Edward Kowal.

Exchanging wedding bands and vows at six o'clock in the evening, Tina was gown in a Chantilly lace creation designed with a scalloped neckline, long puffed sleeves and a bouffant skirt of lace tiers framing a v-shaped front panel.

Sequins, which sparkled on the dress, were also used to accent the little headpiece which held the bride's mid-back illusion veil.

PARENTS OF THE young couple, who spoke their vows before the Rev. William Gram, are Bellevillites, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Bevard of 47105 Bemis Road, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley E. Kowal of 43201 Tyler Road.

Music selected for the June nuptials included 'The First Time Ever I saw Your Face' played by Mark Honeycutt and 'The Wedding Prayer' and 'Because' sung by Rev. Gram.

Preceding the bride to the altar were her maid of honor, Debbie Polzin of Belleville, in pale blue; and the quartet of bridesmaids, Denise and Lori Bevard, wearing orchid; and Diane and Donna Kowal, in yellow, all sisters of the bridal pair.

Identically made, their dresses were of dacron with high-rise waistlines, short sleeves and ruffled hemlines. Their veiled headresses were in matching colors and their bouquets were comprised of matching daisies and baby's breath.

Also in the bridal coterie were the bride's eight-year old sister, Dawn, who was flowergirl in a light blue frock to match those worn by the senior attendants. The little nosegay she held was made up of blue daisies, baby's breath and greens.

Ringbearer was five-year old Eric Brehmer, son of the David Brehmers.

THE BRIDEGROOM asked his best friend, Charles Gohl of Belleville, to serve as best man. Ushers were Ron Box of Belleville, Stanley Kowal and Joe Bevard, brothers of the bridegroom and bride; and Paul Robakiewicz of Romulus.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Bevard donned a shrimp-colored formal chiffon gown. Her corsage of peach-colored carnations, baby roses and baby's breath, was pinned at the shoulder. A similar corsage in yellow was presented to the bridegroom's mother who chose to wear a mint green polyester floor-length gown. At the reception, which followed at UAW Local 735, Ypsilanti, they greeted some 350 guests.

Before making their home on Church Street, Belleville, the newlyweds honeymooned for one week in Hawaii.

A 1971 graduate of Belleville High School, the new Mrs. Kowal is employed at Youth for Understanding in Ann Arbor. Her husband, a 1967 Belleville High alumnus, attended Washtenaw Community College and is currently employed at Draw-Tite, Belleville.

Area police officer nabs Detroit murder suspect

A Romulus man has been cited for his police work in capturing a suspect in a Detroit murder.

Chief David W. McNealey, Jr., of the Royal Oak Township Police Dept. received a merit award from the American Federation of Police for his work in solving the mid-January slaying of Mamie Phillips, 57, of Detroit.

An informant of the chief's told him that the suspect was, Sam Hibbitt, 44, of Detroit.

McNEALEY PASSED the information on to Detroit police. Hibbitt was arrested for the slaying in late January.

"Too often, the service and bravery of law enforcement officers are overlooked by the community, especially when the small group of dissenters attract attention to themselves as in the past, Col. Robert Ferguson, national president of the American Federation of Police, said as he awarded McNealey.

"Heroism and dedicated service are everyday items in the police log, and we in the American Federation of Police intend to spotlight individual officers who are read to lay down their life blood as guardians of law and order," Ferguson continued. UPON RECEIVING the citation, McNealey said his work in the case was routine—that of building confidence toward police in the community to gather information for police work.

He said, "The informant knew he could trust me from past experiences, and from past experiences, I knew I could trust him."

McNealey lives in Romulus with his wife, and five children. The couple is expecting a sixth child soon.

He has been police chief of Royal Oak Township since March, 1972, when he left a similar post in Sumpter Township.

Candidates pledge millage support

The five candidates running for the Romulus City Council under the endorsement of the Citizens for Integrity and Quality in Romulus Government (IQ) have pledged to support the city's water and sewer millage until all residents of the city have the services.

"This does not necessarily mean we favor levying the full taxes the full term they were originally voted," said Donald J. Treder, a professional engineer and chairman of the Romulus City Planning Commission.

"In fact, we have every reason to believe that with this year's added improvements and those tentatively scheduled in the next two years, we should be able to meet all service commitments and still cut tax levies some."

Treder indicated he was speaking for all five candidates on IQ's council slate—incumbents Fred Junior Block and William Oakley, and first-time office seekers Perry C. Gary and Gilbert White, Jr.

Treder said the candidates took their position following public statements by other council candidates—Terry Troutt's slate for council and administration—indicated they would discontinue the current three mill levy for water services and a four mill levy for sanitary sewers.

Continuing Romulus election coverage

The water millage levy is to expire in 1977, while the sewer levy is to expire in 1980.

"The payback obligation on bonds for improvements already made is currently running about $700,000 a year, and there is no way around that commitment without jeopardizing the city's bonding capacities or meeting it with other tax funds," said Treder.

"The main point, however, is that it was promised all citizens would have sewer and water services available when the millage was initially proposed and approved—and we think that commitment should be honored.

"There are still citizens coming before the city council on a regular basis asking when they are going to get the water and sewer improvements they have been paying taxes for—and our position, basically, is that they should have those services in the next two years after this year.

"After that, we're as interested as anyone could be in diverting any available millage to other necessary locations—recreation, storm drainage, or what not,—or simply cutting taxes.

"There's nothing wrong with that!"

According to city treasurer Albert L. Glinski, also a member of the IQ slate, the revenues produced by the seven-mill tax come to $1.3 million, of which $700,000 is committed to bond payments.

"The difference is the amount on which new water and sewer lines are being added each year," he explained.

"I would agree the city should be able to extend both water and sewer to all areas in two years after this one, and after that I would agree some reductions in the original levy might be possible."

Glinski said the city administration had discussed cutting back the levy during budget considerations, but on advice of attorneys, auditors, and because of a common desire to complete the improvements as quickly as possible, the administration had decided to recommend a continuation of the full levy.

"To people who don't have water and sewer yet," said Glinski, "these programs are already taking too long."

"I agree it's better to take the approach that gets them the service the quickest since the costs the same overall either way."

The treasurer said current revenues from water and sewer services are channeled back into the general operation fund for use in all areas, including improving the department of public works.

He said he doubted those revenues could come close to meeting the bond pay off needs even if they were not needed somewhere else.

Two incumbent councilmen urge voters 'to take election seriously'

Two incumbent Romulus City Councilmen, William Oakley and Fred Junior Block, urged Romulus voters to "take this year's elections seriously" while discounting "pie in the sky" promises made by their opponents.

The two, endorsed by the Citizens for Integrity and Quality in Romulus Government (IQ) made no direct criticism of specific candidates, but left no doubt their reference was to tabloid publications circulated by the Troutt Team.

"We certainly have no objections to improved recreation or anything else," said Oakley of Troutt's promises to implement a $1 million recreation land procurement and construction program. "But we do want citizens to know we have considered what the publications said and find much of it to be a completely unrealistic proposal."

"WE WANT citizens of Romulus to take this year's elections seriously."

"There are plenty of real issues involved city council and the city progress for the voter without wasting breath on unrealistic pie in the sky issues."

Oakley criticized Troutt's proposal to eliminate the seven mill water and sewer tax now on Romulus taxpayers.

"THERE IS NO reason for any responsible candidate to be muddying waters with talk about cutting taxes that couldn't be cut even if he wanted to," said Oakley.

He said the city's is obligated to pay on water and sewer bonds until well past the year 2,000, and said that Romulus should continue to construct water and sewer outlets until all residents of the city have the service.

Block, a long-time Romulus businessman seeking his second term on the city council, as is Oakley, said Troutt "is living in the past."

"HE HAD HIS TERMS as head of the local government back in township days and that is history, good or bad," said Block.

"Now it's a city faced with all the problems of any young, struggling municipality—plus a few extra caused by the Metro Airport here — and the city needs all the strengths of good administration, good council and good citizens working together."

Dick runs action program 'to better life in Romulus'

Running on a four-point "action program to better the way of life in Romulus," council candidate Charles Dick Jr., stressed: "And I seek the office as an independent—my only slate is with the people."

Dick, 39, of 34449 California, is a past president of the Romulus Jaycees, and served as vice-chairman of the Romulus City Charter Commission.

In citing the four vital areas of his campaign, Dick said: "We must improve our parks and recreation program—and with the help of the citizens who may have to spend more money for the program."

HE SAID ROMULUS' recreation program, in comparison to neighboring Wayne, is "but a mere pittance," and added: "You don't get something for nothing, and I'm not about to promise the people the sky without telling them someone has to pay."

Dick also feels the city must employ a fulltime industrial coordinator. "We're not getting our share of business growth for a city our size...a city complimented by an airport, two railroads, and freeway transportation."

The Eastern Michigan University graduate also stresses "Our public works department has not been able to do the job for which it was intended and through no fault of the department personnel. What the department needs is more help and sufficient materials and equipment to have at its disposal."

HE ALSO PLEDGES to "take a serious look at the improving of our roads," adding: "Our roads need more care and attention—and ditches must be kept clean. But without a proper storm sewer drainage system

"WE DECIDED ourselves to a new form of government for this community because it was obviously needed."

"What we need now is more cooperative people taking part, not a return to the political spoils system."

we will continue to have water problems.

On his fourth point, Dick said: "We can talk about improvements for the city, but if we are to achieve what we want for the Romulus of tomorrow we must get involved—and I mean every citizen—young and old alike."

Dick said he will work "every minute possible" to get citizen participation in "government, recreation, and all the other problems facing communities in today's demanding age."

The candidate is a graduate of Romulus High School, and in addition to a business administration degree from Eastern Michigan, he has an associate degree from Henry Ford Community College.

He has been employed in management and sales with an insurance company, payroll and purchasing with Chrysler Corporation, and with the Commission on Professional and Hospital Activities.

IN THE AREA of community activities, Dick served on the city's organizational team to form a Community Relations Commission, was a member of the Industrial and Commercial Development Commission, Citizens Advisory Board to Schools—and served on the citizens committee for a state lottery—which went into affect last November.

He also serves on the executive board of the Wayne County Communities United for Action, Better Homes and Community Development, and is active with the Goodfellows and local home owners organizations.

In 1967 he was listed in the U.S. Jaycees 8'outstanding Young Men of America" Journal and in 1969 was honored as "A Community Leader of America."

Vets take GED tests

High school equivalency examinations are "unlocking doors of opportunity" to disabled veterans who are educationally disadvantaged while they are recovering in Veterans Administration hospitals.

Donald E. Johnson, Administrator, said 1,950 veterans took exams last year — a 74 percent increase of the 1,120 who took it in 1970. In 1971, a 1,450 veterans took the test.

VA is now offering the tests in 102 of its hospitals in 42 states.

Passing the exam enables educationally disadvantaged veterans to upgrade their skills, earn higher incomes and otherwise realize fuller, more productive lives, the Administrator said. Many veterans outside hospitals have also taken the tests through state government programs.

The committee will ask for donations at each of the food concessions to defray costs, however.

All area residents are invited to attend, and are asked to bring something for a pot luck supper, scheduled during the day.

Included in the Rally will be a frisbee throwing contest, a raffle, a blind auction, horse shoe pitching contest and a putting contest.

Prizes will be offered for the winners in each contest.

Residents are urged to bring their own lawn chairs and blankets to meet with Ms. McNally, and other candidates running for the council.

Ms. McNally promises that campaign speeches will be short during the day.

Troutt candidates say city needs new image

Four of the five Troutt team candidates for Romulus City Council called for a new Romulus Senior Citizens Club. The council candidates—Richard Butz, Lng Coleman, Joan A. Lee and Robert Martin—enumerated the failures of the Carmichael administration in the last three and a half years and condemned the mayor and his council for churning progress in Romulus and making our city the backwoods of the metropolitan area.

The Troutt team kickoff rally two weeks ago that the candidates appeared together for campaign speeches.

ACCUSING the Carmichael administration for throwing the city backward, Butz charged: City hall has chained progress in Romulus.

"The physical conditions of the city is enough to convince even a stranger that Romulus has slid backward, while every city around us is going forward."

"As a resident I'm angry with our dirty roads, lack of ordinance enforcement and the lack of effort to improve our business facilities," Butz said.

Joan Lee emphasized the importance of the forthcoming primary to the senior citizens, saying: "In an election in which 29 candidates are running for the council, there's the chance that voters may without knowing vote for candidates who will be hostile towards each other. "The Troutt team council candidates have only one goal and that is to put Romulus in the 20th century where it should be and give the people the service they are crying for. "I have been told i y many residents that the council and Mayor Carmichael have been unresponsive to their problems."

Coleman said: "I am appalled with the inefficiency of city hall. They have cut us off from the rest of the world."

When a senior citizen asked Coleman what he would do to remedy the situation, he replied: "One of the first things the Troutt team would do is give the city a new goal for a new image by formulating a reliable master city plan and acquire an industrial coordinator to attract new business and broaden our tax base with new businesses. "At the present rate our city doesn't have a chance for progress because the mayor and council have not encouraged development. Under their administration we continually lose more land to the airport."

Coleman also criticized the city for not having a strong anti-drug program and "its disregard for our youth."

Martin said: "I see new housing areas turning into slums without any strong action by the city; I see the business area deteriorating, and I see burned out, charred and half-standing buildings that the city has left in an ugly and unsanitary condition for three years."

"They (city hall) haven't had the civic concern to keep the city clean to attract new business and residents."

"It's impossible for Romulus to get ahead with people who don't have enough pride to clean up burned building that have been standing three years."

Council candidate says city should utilize surplus funds

Before the city considers raising taxes, Romulus officials should utilize surplus funds for community improvement, says candidate for the city council, Dolores Ristow.

"I believe that as an operating principal we should utilize money now available, take advantage of carefully screened federal subsidies and proceed with caution in regard to levying additional taxes for things that are nice to have but expensive to pay for," Mrs. Ristow said.

Counseling center to help youth

A new area crisis-counseling center, planned for an Aug. 1 opening, will have the "moral support" of the Van Buren Township Board of Trustees. The trustees also approved $300 for the center.

The center, which is called, The Number, will offer telephone counseling from 3 to 11 p.m. daily and some individual counseling.

It will handle a variety of problems including drug abuse and family conflicts, a written statement to the board said.

The center, which is in the process of incorporating as a nonprofit organization, is seeking $9,000 for the first year of operation, the statement said.

surplus available for development.

"OUR PUBLIC officials are too involved in passing the buck on development, rather than acting with the taxpayers' money."

Mrs. Ristow says that the city should consider improving recreation, roads, protective services, and provide honest compensation for professional help to get Romulus off the ground.

"We need better roads," she said, "but when someone petitions the council for improvement, the council says there is no equipment."

"LATER, when there is equipment, the council says there is no money—and all the while the people get their tax bills, with no service."

"We need better than what we receive, but there is always the problem of getting an answer."

"For example, our children in some subdivisions have no place to play."

"WE SHOULD have areas, but no one has forced developers to set aside land for recreation, and there is a drought of it in Romulus."

"Why hasn't anyone acted to make developers face up to their responsibilities to the community?" Ms. Ristow asked.

A part of Romulus' problem could be a lack of professional help, according to Ms. Ristow.

"WE HAVE NO planner and we have no economic developer, and that's because we offer too little money for professional experience," she explained.

"Because of the petty bickering now going on, the government can only offer peanuts for competent help, while the people of the community suffer from a lack of planning.

"The people have been lulled into a false sense of security while their community grinds to a stop around them," she said.

Belleville '9' wins Babe Ruth title

Belleville will pack up its gear and head for Eastern Michigan University Sunday to compete for the Babe Ruth state championship.

The team earned the right last Sunday by turning back a determined Saline aggregation 3-2 to win the district title.

Dan Mattson twirled a four-hitter, struck out nine and walked four to chalk up the victory. He got out of a seventh inning jam when Belleville managed to squelch a Saline rally.

Losing pitcher Ken Pruitt struck out eight, walked two and served up five hits.

BELLEVILLE grabbed the initiative and the lead in the third inning when Scott Jenks singled and was sacrificed to second by Mattson. Then Richard Ivan singled him to third and Scott Rice came through with a two-run single.

Saline cut the margin by one-run in the sixth as Pruitt led the assault with a single, stole second, and moved up on an error. He eventually scored on a sacrifice fly.

BELLEVILLE came right back in the second to get the run back. Ivan started things off when he was safe on an error. He moved all the way to third on a couple of Saline throwing miscues and scored when Rice belted a sacrifice fly to right field.

Mattson started to weaken in the seventh. He issued a pair of walks and a single but stopped the rally thanks to a couple of defensive gems.

The EMU tournament will bring together several district titlists. Belleville will make its its initial appearance at 2 p.m.

BELLEVILLE made it to the championship round by ousting Morenci 5-1 behind the no-hitting pitching Jeff Hoeman who fanned 10, walked six to chalk up the win.

Morenci scored an unearned run in the fifth inning to spoil Hoeman's bid for shutout.

The All-Stars took the lead in the first inning when Richard Ivan was safe on an error, then stole second and was sacrificed to third by Ted Ziolkowski.

Ivan scored on Roy Rutherford's ground out.

IN THE third inning Belleville put four runs on the scoreboard with Ivan again igniting the attack. He signaled and when Ziolkowski put down a bunt, both runners were safe and eventually scored on a series of throwing miscues.

Rutherford continued the surge with a walk, moved to second when Russell Rook sacrificed. Hoeman fanned but the catcher's error gave him a chance to reach first.

Danny Coleman's suicide squeeze chased home the final run of the game.

Saline, which won a close 2-1 victory over Blissfield, made it to the finals the hard way.

About that Omnibus Sports Bill

By TOM MOORADIAN

Strange isn't it, everytime someone shouts "federal control," the echoes can shatter the eardrums and set up images of an octopus strangling its victim.

This imagery apparently was conjured up by the National Federation of State High School Associations when it asserted that "proposed federal legislation for government control of amateur sports would be 'disastrous' to prep programs."

Apparently the NFSA, which represents 50 states and some 20,000 schools, sees the federal government mustering up troops and marching on high schools and ordering programs which only the Pentagon maps out.

AS IN ALMOST everything these days, it has become mod to blame the federal government for everything that goes wrong, but give it none of the credit when programs go right.

And, believe me, the Federal government has done many a right thing for you and me.

But the NFSA contends, in an adopted protesting resolution, that a commission to regulate all amateur sports in this country, which the Omnibus Sports Bill would do if adopted, "would inhibit state high school associations from holding their traditional sports championship event without sanction from the federal commission."

THE FEDERATION called for "the elimination of any aspect of the bill not directed to international competition."

Well, maybe the NFSA is right. The federal government should keep its hands off of amateur sports. That we don't need a federal commission to help organize local, state, national or international sports. Traditionally government has shied away from such duties in this country.

But times have changed and are changing. They even have a designated hitter in baseball, don't they?

Local and state athletic unions have done exceptionally well in the past but the friction between such groups is ever-increasing. And high school sports - a sleeping giant in the past - has awoken and come of age.

TEEN-AGERS are setting records that their adult predecessors only dreamed of. These youngsters are not only competing in local competition but are vying in state and national tournaments. They will need all the help they can to keep this country's athletic image a strong one.

And a federal government which serves the interests of the young athletes would be serving the interests of the country at large.

A commission set up to help our prep (and amateur) athletics doesn't look as evil as many people would have us believe it is.

Prep and amateur athletics will continue to develop as long as their are youngsters who love competition.

And a federal commission could play a key role in aiding amateur athletics in this country.

What may have been one of the longest softball winning streaks in the area ended last week as Huron Valley Steel lost a 6-4 decision to Beck-Howell Carpets in the Romulus Class A League.

Huron's had amassed a 44 game winning streak before bumping into the determined carpetmen who turned a defensive duel and a couple of Valley Steel mistakes into one of the biggest upsets in the area.

Romulus Softball League action came in the 1971 playoffs when Baum Funeral Home knocked the powerhouse off.

HURON THEN went on to defeat Romulus Progressive Club, now Beck-Howell, Morgan Manor and took a doubleheader from Baum's in the final round to earn the playoff championship and start a string of wins that came to an end last Tuesday.

The champs won 19 straight in regular season play last year and swept the playoff championship with another five wins. That made the total 28 straight. The "unbeatable" then strung together 10 straight wins at the start of the season to amass 38 triumphs.

Huron also entered the Waltz Tournament in 1972 and swept six games there which stretched their streak to 44.

Huron led through most of the game, which went to nine innings, however defensive lapses in the seventh and ninth stopped the Valleymen. Beck-Howell took a 1 to 0 lead in the second when winning hurler Fred Eberline opened with a single. Phil Bailey's double moved him to third and Ron Dick's single brought him home. Bailey was retired at the plate trying to score on the play.

Huron scored three times in its half of the inning as Eggers led off with a single, Walt Goeckel forced Eggers, Mike Csaszar singled and Greg Johnson doubled scoring Goeckel. Rich Kokila lifted a sacrifice fly, scoring Csaszar and Ron Kampen's single scored Johnson.

Huron made it 4 to 1 in the fourth when Walt Goeckel tripled and Mike Csaszar cashed him with a single. The champs threatened again in the fifth when Rich Spearman tripled and Alec Csaszar drew a walk, but Eggers bounced into an inning ending double play.

WALT DREWNO led off the top of the sixth with a single moved to second on an infield out and scored on John Sterling's single to bring Beck-Howell within two runs of Huron. Phil Bailey drew a walk in the Carpetmen's seventh inning with one down and when Ron Dick's single to right eluded the right fielder for an error, Bailey scored and Ron ended at third base.

Dan Leslie hit a slow roller to second and Dick scored the tying run easily beating the hurried throw to the plate.

Ken Mientkiewicz was safe on an error in the ninth to start things off for Beck-Howell. Eberline then singled and when Bailey's double play ball was thrown away Mientkiewicz scored the lead run. Eberline came half way home on the play then retreated as the throw came to the plate.

Ken Mientkiewicz was safe on an error in the ninth to start things off for Beck-Howell. Eberline then singled and when Bailey's double play ball was thrown away Mientkiewicz scored the lead run. Eberline moved to third, Bailey stopped at second.

Ron Dick was passed purposely to fill the sacks and Dan Leslie then lined to the right fielder for the first out. Eberline came half way home on the play then retreated as the throw came to the plate. Bailey had tagged and also moved towards third - Bailey stopped a few feet short of the bag and tried to get back to second - the throw went to second for the second out. Eberline racing home to score as Bailey was being tagged out.

Beck-Howell played errorless ball behind Eberline while Huron was guilty of three costly errors behind Rich Kokila.

AND HERE'S something "just for the record book."

The Romulus Board of Education Monday night voted unanimously to accept the resignations of head football Coach Bill Hardy and head basketball Coach Dave Court.

There was nothing else the trustees could do: Hardy had resigned to accept an assistant coaching job with a small college, while Court wanted to take a job with the Kalamazoo School District.

The question is: how long will the board wait to find capable replacements for the school which is laden with football and basketball talent?

Football is right around the corner, while basketball — just a step beyond.

In other league action, Richard Spearman connected for three runs to lead a 15-hit barrage in a 17 to 2 rout of Baum's Funeral Home that put Huron Valley in the winning groove. Huron had a total of seven homers in the contest as Bill Howell collected a pair and Greg Johnson and Csaszar added one each.

JOE LADUKE'S two-run homer spoiled Kokila's shutout bid. Singles by Pratt, Kinshella and Vermeer were the only other hits Kokila allowed.

Romulus Hardware dropped Beck-Howell two full games back of Huron once more, scoring five times in the fifth and eight times in the sixth to dump the Carpetmen 16 to 6. Beck-Howell led 6 to 3 going into the fifth when Hardware staged its rally. Dennis Poet and Ed Labato each had three hits to lead Hardware's 17 hit attack.

POLKA DOT Party store moved a game and a half ahead of Morgan Manor in the Class "B" League last week. Trailing 6 to 5 Polka Dot led in the seventh to pull out a 7 to 6 win over Morgan.

Bob Brothers and Junior Rakotz started the rally with singles. Leon James singled to score Brothers with the tying run and Rich Rakotz delivered the game winning hit, scoring pinch-runner Jack Slater. Ralph Rakotz was the winning pitcher.

Thursday, Polka Dot opened its lead to one and a half lengths with a 14 to 3 win over NAPA while Morgan dropped another one run game 16 to 15.

in eight innings, to Hal's Market. Bill Worden, Don Skiff and Leon James all homered as Polka Dot pounded NAPA with 18 hits in support of winning hurler Chuck Hazen.

DICK MARSHALL and Ted Dyer homered for Walter's Bar in a 13 to 10 win over Romulus City Drugs. Bob Majeski homered for the druggist. The win moved Walter's within a half game of second place Morgan Manor.

Norm McLenon pitched Carpentry by Woodcraft to a 4 to 3 win over Traffic Transport that moved Woodcraft into a tie for second place with Beck-Howell. Penza West hit a solo home run for Carpentry.

HOP, SKIP AND A JUMP — The Auto Daredevils of King Kovaz, who will be performing at the Monroe County Fair on Aug. 11, from 7 to 9 p.m. put on a display of their world champion "helldriving" for thousands of fans each year. The Dodges they use are standard production models.

Daredevils to drive in Monroe County Fair

Maybe it all started when Detroit decided to put metal tops on cars, and began rolling them over to test their strength.

Or, maybe somebody just got the idea that people would pay to watch other people perform stunts in cars.

Or, maybe Lucky Teeter just did it on a dare.

However it got started, "hell driving," or stunting with automobiles, is now one of the biggest attractions on wheels country-wide. In fact, it has even spread out of the country.

Jack Kochman, who now runs a group of Dodge-driving daredevils that put on quite a show, still remembers the beginnings.

He credits Teeter for making the activity a fan favorite.

"Teeter was to hell driving was Babe Ruth was to baseball," Kochman recalls. "He had a certain something about him, a magnetism, a way to project himself."

TEETER DREW crowds with his stunts, including the ramp to ramp jump which he made famous and which has become one of the staples of hell driving.

Ironically, Teeter was killed making a ramp to ramp jump in the Midwest. It was the kind of accident which, if it happened today, might not have been fatal.

The Helldrivers-Daredevils will be in the area next month, performing at the Monroe County Fair on Aug. 11 from 7 to 9 p.m.

"At that time, the ramps were solid," Dan Fleenor, a veteran driver who has his own show and is still performing, said.

"Now, the ends of the ramps collapse if the cars go far enough and hit them."

JIMMY LYNCH with his Death Dodgers got into the hell driving business shortly after Lucky Teeter formed the first group.

Lynch played the New York's World's Fair in 1939 and thus became the first group to gain real national recognition.

In 1942, Kochman took over and it was rough sledding until the end of World War II. But, despite a lack of parts and equipment, along with tire and gasoline rationing, Kochman's group continued to play to capacity crowds at county fairs and other similar events.

"We ran on 31-inch iron cleated wheels," Kochman said, "and modified our carburetors to run on propane cooking gasoline. The way those cars lasted and the punishment they took during that period was a real testimony to the American automobile."

Over the years, the basics of hell driving have remained the same.

SKILLS HAVE been improved and the equipment is much better, but the bread and butter of auto thrill shows, the crashes, is much the same as it was in Teeter's day.

"We used to go into a town, pick up a few junkers and do the show," Fleenor said. "Now, you can't do that anymore."

SEVERAL of the top groups, such as Kochman's Hell Drivers, Walt "King" Kovaz' Auto Daredevils and Fleenor's Hurricane Hell Drivers, all rely on new Dodges and Plymouths for their more spectacular tricks.

And, unlike many types to auto racing, thrill shows are almost never canceled because of bad weather.

"Sometimes we can't do all of the tricks, but you can usually do the crashes," Fleenor said.

"If it's raining hard, you might be able to do a ramp to ramp jump because you have to reach a certain speed and the tires might slip going up the ramp."

"You make up for it by doing other things," Kochman said. "You might have your announcer stand in the middle of a muddy track with a white suit on and run the cars inches from him."

"He gets pretty muddy, but it's part of the show for the fans."

In addition to the old standards such as the T-bone crash, where a car dives into others placed vertically in his path, precision driving has also come into play.

In this, several cars zig-zag and criss-cross the track in a series of movements involving precision timing.

STRANGELY ENOUGH, top race drivers do not make good hell drivers as a general rule, despite the need for fast reflexes and other similarities in the work.

"In hell driving, the most important thing is to develop a skill so that you do the same thing over and over exactly the same way," Fleenor said.

Blue Boar survives upset-minded rival

With just two weeks to go in the Belleville Softball League, Blue Boar Inn is trying to hang onto a slim 1½ game lead over second place Belleville Teachers.

Blue Boar had its hands full last week with P.L.A.V. and Jaycees, as the league-leaders barely squeezed out a 1-0 victory in the first game and a 10-6 decision in the latter contest.

Teachers, meanwhile, notched three quick wins—over State Police (forfeit); Belleville Moose; 14-7; and Belleville Mobile Homes, 10-8.

Blue Boar and Belleville Teachers were to meet in a showdown Monday.

IN OTHER league action, P.L.A.V. whitewashed Auto Air Cargo, 9-0; State Police forfeited to Belleville Moose; Jaycees whipped Auto Air Cargo, 10-2; and Moose downed Belleville Mobile Homes, 8-7, in eight innings.

Kid -Power scores 31-0 win

A merciful thing happened in Saturday's Ladies Softball action: the game between Kid-Power and the Seekers was stopped after four innings.

Kid-Power, the first-place might with a perfect 6-0 record, attacked the Seekers with 31 runs before the slaughter was halted by a "mercy rule" after four innings with the score 31-0.

Five of Kid-Power's starting 10 players swatted four hits, and the winners clubbed nine home runs off loser Val Newcomb. Winning pitcher Vickie Gray held the Seekers (1-5) to three hits.

Second place Kel-Joys (5-1) battered the Ms. Fits, 11-5, as Cindy Nixon, Jan Madaski and Sandy Selle knocked out four hits apiece. Pat Maciejewski led the losers (3-3) with three hits and Anne Szyndlar had the game's only homer.

The City Hall Gals, third with a 4-2 record, exploded on the last-place Roadrunners, 24-8. Diane Summerfield blasted five hits in the winning effort, and Loretta Renke, Sylvia Dubisky and Ava Hall had four hits each. Agnie Hicks smacked a home run off loser Carol Johnson.

WINNER ROSE Booth gave up 15 hits in handing the Roadrunners their sixth straight loss.

The Odd Squad and Romulus Diamonds battled in a fourth-place showdown, and in the end it was the Diamonds that got chipped.

Janeal Eberline pestered loser Phyllis Reeves for five hits and Brenda Caldwell had four. Three other Odd Squaders collected three hits.

Winner Cindy Hodd surrendered four hits to Jean Hoffman and three apiece to Sherrie Compton and pitcher Reeves. The victory evened Odd Squad's record at .500 at 3-3, while dropping Diamonds to 3-3 also.

Area Lions Club to cruise on Bob Lo boat

The Metro-Airport Lions Club of Romulus is sponsoring its first Bob Lo Moonlight Cruise to benefit the Rochester School for the Blind.

The Lions Club will have room for more than 1,100 interested residents when the Bob Lo Boat leaves the foot of Woodward at 8 p.m. next Tuesday.

Reservations, at a cost of $5 per cent, can be made by calling Chum Stockwell, public relations director for the club, at 721-2257.

"It ought to be a fun night, with lots of refreshments and snacks available, and the opportunity to dance all night to a live orchestra during a cruise down the Detroit River," said Stockwell.

"And the reason for the cruise, raising money for the Rochester School, isn't a bad reason to attend, either."

Stockwell said blind people throughout the world come for the Rochester School's weekly leader dog training classes. "They become people useful to society through this school," he said.

"All too often, even the blind think they are useless because of their handicap. They allow it to take over and to sap their natural talents."

"Through the Rochester School, the blind learn how to function in the sighted world, and how to contribute to society."

"It's been years since you've seen the blind begging in the streets-selling pencils and other things to survive."

"It's the Lions who have taken over the begging for these people, so they can join the rest of society."

Although the Romulus chapter of the Lions Club hasn't sent any blind to the school, Stockwell said both the Wayne and Westland chapters have referred several people each to the leader dog school.

"We need to know where the blind in our community are," said Stockwell.

"This is not a charity for the blind, but a service we are providing to assure that blindness does not become an affliction.

All too often, we find people who allow their handicap to take over their motivation, and we, in the Lions Club, believe that there is no reason blindness should become a hindrance to their mobility.

"We want to make these people useful."

Commission recognizes townships

The Inter-County Highway Commission presented the Van Buren Township Board and the Sumpter Township Board with certificates of acknowledgement at its July 10 meeting.

The certificates were presented to the townships for recognition of their adoption of the highway plan on Dec. 8.

The plan is a highway system for southeastern Michigan. The highway commission hopes to group all of the southeastern area into one region to allow for right-of-way for motorists and a central agency for highway expansion.

Van Buren and Sumpter townships are among 36 cities and townships of Wayne County that have approved or adopted the highway plan.

Residential property tops list of local building permits

The Van Buren Township Dept. of Building and Safety Engineering approved almost $200,000 in building permits and almost $2,000 in mechanical permits during the month of June.

The major percentage of building permits were issued to residential dwellings.

Low-density dwellings were assessed at $131,072 and charged a fee of $433.

Garages and carports accounted for $31,532 in assessed value with fees amounting to $150.

The total monthly additions, alterations and conversion came to $7,670 in valuation and $34 in fees.

Demolitions and relocations accounted for $312 in fees and $1,600 in assessment.

New swimming pool permits were valued at $15,325 at a fee of $40.

In other building assessments, the board of appeals were charged a fee of $33.

Electrical assessments totaled $1,572.50 in June.

Heating assessments totaled $298 and plumbing fees amounted to $88.

Citizens group holds hat party

All members are requested to come and make this party a success.

The July 26 meeting will be the regular pot luck supper. This is not a planned supper, so bring anything you like. There will be music and games.

All meetings will be at St. Anthony's School thru August. For information call Hazel Schaal 699-4631.

House works diligently to balance budget

By EDWARD E. MAHALAK, State Representative, 38th District

The State House has been engaged in the delicate job of balancing the state budget for the year.

Constitutionally, the state cannot run in the red. Its income must match its expenditures. It may be possible to have a national debt, but it is not constitutionally possible to have a state debt.

So while the legislature is working to wrap up the 1973-74 budget, it also faces the task of trying to wipe out any fiscal imbalance. This likely will mean some trimming of the presently pending budget bills.

LOGICALLY, the biggest cuts would come out of the biggest bills, social services and school aid. Ranking behind them in dollar amounts are the mental health and higher education budgets. Because of differences in their versions of the various budget bills, the House and Senate have sent many of the items into special conference committees that will be trying to work out a compromise.

Meanwhile, while so many budget bills are still pending after the July 1 start of the new fiscal year, the legislature has passed a bill to allow all departments of the state to operate at their present spending levels until passage of their new appropriations.

One important bill that has cleared both chambers and been sent to the governor is the state revenue sharing measure. This bill shares with cities, counties, townships and villages $262.8 million in state-collected tax revenues, as well as approximately $1.7 in "new money" from the state general fund.

Under the bill, the basic formula for distribution remains unchanged with $128 million in sales tax and $14.5 million of the intangibles tax being paid on a per capita basis and $46.5 million income tax and the remaining $14.6 million in intangibles tax being paid under the formula.

THE BILL PROVIDES that each year each local unit of government will again have the option of being paid under either the "tax effort" or the "tax burden" formula, whichever is greater.

Tax effort would include any local property tax, income tax and, in the case of Detroit, the utility tax. The tax burden would include, in addition to the above, all special assessments plus 25 per cent of the overlapping taxes (school and county taxes). These figures would then be compared to the statewide average to arrive at either the relative tax effort or the relative tax burden which the local unit's formula payments are based.

There would be a minimum guarantee for each local unit of $17 per capita and, if they levy one mill or more, a minimum of as much as $20 per capita, under a sliding scale of from one to three mills. Under the bill, this would increase $1 per capita per year.

Approved by the House with very little debate was a bill to separate the commission on the aging from the governor's office. The bill will put the commission on an independent basis for two years before it is placed under another agency. THE PURPOSE is to gather several programs now scattered among several state departments into one agency and to coordinate local and state programs and policies. The new commission of 11 members would be appointed by the governor, with Senate approval. Only six of the members could be from the same political party and six must be at least 55 years old. The director of the agency would be appointed by the governor. The bill is under consideration in the senate. It passed the house by an 83 to 10 vote.

NBD to open branch office in area

National Bank of Detroit (NBD) will open a new branch office at I-94 and Rawsonville Road in Van Buren Township.

Named NBD's Lakewood Center Office, it is the bank's second office in Van Buren Township and its fifth in the greater Belleville - Romulus area.

The office will be part of the 20-acre Lakewood Center shopping complex already under construction by Schostak Developers. NBD will offer a full line of banking services. These include savings accounts, checking accounts for businesses and individuals, and the processing of consumer loans, charge cards and mortgage applications. Until construction is complete, NBD will operate in an interim facility.

"WE'RE EXCITED about the opening just as much as we are excited about the community and its future," said Robert Heinrich, who has been named acting manager of the office. "We're looking forward to giving the community the best banking service available today, and expanding those services to keep pace with the growth of the area in the future."

Lakewood Center's first account was opened by Van Buren Township Supervisor, G. Elton Gollwitzer. "NBD has been an important part of our community for many years," Gollwitzer said, "and we're delighted over the confidence the bank continues to show in our Township."

Harry Lapham, vice president in charge of NBD

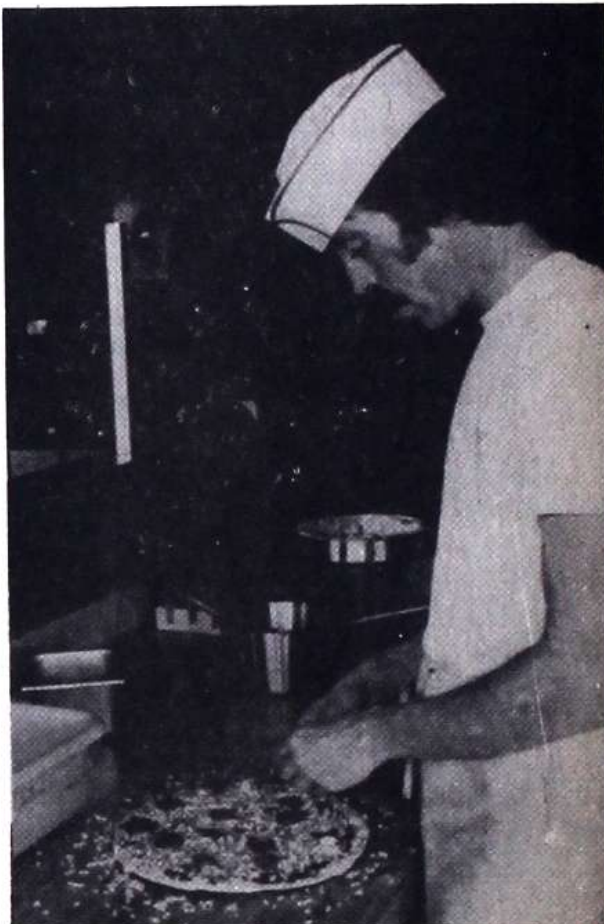

offices in the area, said the opening comes at a "most opportune time."

"Just about every planner I talk to agrees the future of the area is especially bright," he said. "There is so much here to attract residents and businesses — from excellent transportation facilities to plenty of lakes, woods, and scenery."

"IN THE LAST 20 years the population has doubled and it will no doubt double again. We're privileged to be part of that growth."

The new office will be open Monday through Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and to 6 p.m. on Friday. It can be reached from the south service drive of the I-94 expressway and from Rawsonville Road.

Free Mechanic
with every car at Atchinson Ford
That's just another way to say, we guarantee your car from the road to roof, and from door to door and from bumper to bumper for the first year (or 12,000 miles) you own it. And we'll help you keep that new car ride that you rightfully deserve. Mechanical service is free, thanks to our exclusive, copyrighted, Free Mechanic Warranty. It covers a lot of the little things that go wrong with your car, like a defective door latch. (Subject to the conditions of the factory warranty.) In addition you get a 15 percent parts and labor discount for the two subsequent years. Frankly, not much goes wrong with our cars these days. But if it should, we pay the Mechanic.
It's about time a car dealer delivered more than just a car.*
